A product patent. Failure to file proof of working or a valid excuse for non-working will open this case for compulsory licensing. A patent will lapse if not worked by the patentee two years after the first compulsory license is granted. Importation of the patented product or of a product made by the patented process is sufficient to prevent a compulsory license. A statement justifying the "non-working" status of this patent filed 8/1/04. The statement appears to have been accepted. |

A product patent. An opposition was filed by Procter & Gamble - Germany on 8/23/99. We filed a response (a "counterstatement") on 1/31/00. An oral proceeding was scheduled for 5/31/01, but canceled. Our British associate expects that the hearing will be rescheduled or that the opposition will be rejected and the cancellation of the hearing confirmed. Opposition rejected 2/20/02. A product-by-process, and process/method patent. Also included: Elastic netting with "ator" and a low MD strength composite. "Fiber formed netting" P&G - Europe filed an opposition on 3/4/04. Attempts during spring and summer of 2004 to contact P&G to settle this opposition out-of-court has largely failed. Applied and received a 2-month extension. Moving the opposition response due date to 11/4/04. Filed our response on 1/4/04. At the same time, sent letter to P&G - Europe informing of a P&G breach of a 1992 CDA. As a result, we proposed receiving a royalty-free license for corresponding P&G European patent in exchange for their withdrawal of the patent opposition. Requested response from P&G within two weeks. Awaiting EPO Office Action. Awaiting P&G response. |

The claims of Procter & Gamble U.S. patents 6,074,505 and U.S. 6,093,693 overlap those of this patent. We have so far decided not to challenge the P&G patents through an interference proceeding. We believe we have the earlier conception date. P&G has also breached a 1992 CDA. See corresponding situation for patent EP 0 915 751.  |
