EHS Spotlight

- 29 Environment, health, and safety briefs
- 33 Managing the Proliferation of Inspections—These tips can help manage common EHS inspections. BY SCOTT WIGGINS
- 34 A Lasting Safety Message—Members shut down operations during ISRI's 6th annual Safety Stand-Down Day to have discussions aimed at building long-term safety habits.
- 41 Building Bonds With BBQ—Becker Iron & Metal hosted a grill-centered open house for local first responders in an effort to say thank you, build community, and improve safety. BY LISA DUNN
- 45 Lessons Learned—ISRI's new near miss reporting system allows members to learn from each other when they describe close calls and share how they changed their operations in response.
- 51 Looking for Trouble—Cascade Asset Management opened its doors to federal researchers to learn more about potential health hazards in electronics recycling operations. BY KATIE PYZYK

A Promising Formula

- 58 Chemical recycling can turn plastic that might otherwise go into the landfill into new products, but it will take time and money for these technologies to truly get off the ground. BY MEGAN QUINN

Building Bridges

- 71 Electronics recyclers encounter numerous obstacles in their efforts to refurbish and resell electronics. They hope to work with manufacturers, not against them, to achieve mutual goals. BY JESSICA ZIMMER

Boxed Out

- 79 The rise of e-commerce means more corrugated cardboard is going to residences, where people are less likely to recycle it. How are cardboard manufacturers and sustainability advocates stepping up recovery efforts? BY EMILIE SHUMWAY

Know Before You Throw

- 88 MRFs, municipalities, and haulers are working to reduce the public's confusion about what belongs in the recycling bin. Consistent messaging is the first step. BY MEGAN QUINN
