INSTRUCTIONS

Step 1 - Make sure the Toe Block (A) is completely closed by turning the Widening T-Handle (B) counterclockwise. To be able to insert the stretcher into the shoe, the Toe Block (A) needs to be completely closed.

Step 2 (Optional) - Insert Plugs (C) into the hole in the Toe Block (A) where you want more stretching. This is typically used for bunions, corns, and any other reason you want a more targeted stretch.

Step 3 - Insert the Toe Block (A) completely into into the toe box of the shoe. You should be able to feel the stretcher, and the optional plug (C), inside the shoe.

Step 4 - Turn the widening T-Handle (B) clockwise to open the the Toe Block (A) of the stretcher and stretch the width of the shoe. By touching the outside of the shoe, you should be able to feel the Toe Block (A) separate. Once snug, give the T-Handle (B) one or two more cranks to achieve the optimum stretch. Careful not to over stretch though. Overstretching can damage certain shoes

Step 5 - Once the desired stretch settings are in place, leave the stretcher in the shoe for at least 8 hours. The longer the better.

Step 6 - To remove the stretcher, turn the Widening T-Handle (B) counterclockwise and completely close the Toe Block (A) of the stretcher. Depending on the shoe, you should be able to feel the Toe Block (A) close through the shoe. Then, gently pull out the stretcher.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

Can I use the Beagle Shoe Stretcher with a stretching spray?

Yes, you can use a stretching spray to help the stretching process, but it is not necessary. If you do use a spray, it can make it easier to overstretch the shoe, so we recommend taking it slow and it may take multiple stretching sessions to get it just right.

Can I use the Beagle Shoe Stretcher for boots or high heels?

We do not recommend using the Beagle for anything other than flat soled shoes. Don't worry though, we do offer stretchers specifically for boots and high heels available online.

I'm right between the sizes of the Beagle, should I size up or down?

The Beagle's toe box is quite wide, so we recommend sizing down if you are between sizes.
