Hey, we used it! Congratulations, Stephen Colbert, for winning our global election. We raise our eggnog to you (and it has a lot of nutmeg)!

Original Description

Here at the North Pole we don't have political leanings, but we've heard rumblings that you all are having an election, so we wanted to play along! We thought we'd leave the name of the tree up to all 300 million of you gas-price-watching freedom lovers. We've limited the choices to our two favorite candidates, along with one write-in submitted by a rabid late-night TV talk show fan (who definitely is not the host of Stephen Colbert's The Colbert Report).

While we're extremely proud of our 2008 Election tree, we need a name for her. That's where we hope you, our fellow Americans, will help out. Vote for your favorite name from the three at the right there > > >, and we promise to use it.*

*Disclaimer: Treetopia will rename the tree per users' votes unless the Treetopia team, heretofore known as "Florida," deems it necessary to perform a recount. Chads, dangling or not, may or may not be included in said recount, depending on our mood and the amount of eggnog we've drunk.

Tree includes:

- Rotating stand (oh yes, this baby spins!)
- 15 LED white star lights (approx. 1 inch in diameter)
- Red, white, and blue (what did you expect?) branches
- Shimmery look on white branches

What? Treetopia made a mistake? It couldn't be!... And This Brings Us To Tonight's Word: The Letter "J"

Tree Nation, you may have heard the report from Paige Phelps of the Dallas Morning News that we've misspelled Stephen T. Colbert's name on our election ballot. [Paige, nice catch!]

Ms. Phelps alleges we replaced the "T" with the more curvaceous "J." Nation, it seems Stephen Colbert must not be proud of his middle name, Tyrone. [Can you blame him?] You can see this from his signature, where he leaves out any reference of "T" or "Tyrone."

If he loved his middle name, wouldn't he use it? [Just like Barack's friends call him "Hussein"]

Think of it this way: if Stephen Colbert wins our election, which looks like a sure bet, he'll have Presidential power. Among these, he will have the ability to grant pardons. Previous to the founding Father(s), only Jesus granted pardons. So, by the transitive power of the letter "J," Stephen J. Colbert must be Stephen Jesus Colbert. [No wonder he walks on water!]

You heard it here first, Jesus has his own cable TV show and just won an Emmy! [Along with his disciples...er, writers].

What would you rename our Treetopia 2008 Election Tree?

Comments about Treetopia Stephen J. Colbert National Treasure Tree:

We love this tree! I added white lights to the white sections, and it really added a lot. We use ours for election day, July 4th, Christmas, and any other time we need some red, white, and blue! It is amazing!

BOTTOM LINE Yes, I would recommend this to a friend

Comments about Treetopia Stephen J. Colbert National Treasure Tree:

I love this tree because it takes my red, white & blue theme even further. I like the fact that the tree revolves. Could use some more LED lights on the rest of the tree instead of just on the top section. Looks great in my den. Very unique tree; you won't see this one in the stores at the Mall.

BOTTOM LINE Yes, I would recommend this to a friend
