BEST USES

Hot weather | Being Active

Very comfortable with amazing breath-ability. Never thought much of the concept of "stretchy" pants until I tried

I am loving the pockets and really like the way these pants are laid out. Very expensive but worth the price. At least they are worth it for me. Still expensive, but I am getting the feeling this is type of gear is the wave of the future. Very cool stuff. Hope they last as well as my Taclite pants.

MY PROFESSION IS

I am a Search and Rescue volunteer, K9 handler, and rope rescue technician, so my gear sees hard use on a constant basis. I have used nearly every pant that 5.11 makes, and find the Traverse to be at the top of my list. It is super lightweight and tough. It does pill a bit but the flexibility and stretch of the fabric more than make up for it. It is VERY comfortable. A few minor suggestions to this otherwise Excellent pair of pants... 1) the elastic in the cargo pockets is not effective and should be either eliminated (my vote) or replaced with something like the Stryke pant divider 2) add a non-slip waistband, so when worn with a nylon shirt everything stays put. The Traverse is a solid performer, particularly when its hot and you need to move fast.

BOTTOM LINE Yes, I would recommend this to a friend
