

Our Services

Seeds of Peace has over two decades of experience organizing and implementing dialogue and leadership development programs for youth and educators in communities in conflict across the globe.

Nearly 6,700 young leaders and educators from 27 countries have benefitted from our year-round conflict transformation programs. Learn more about our model, programs, and the impact of our work.

We offer facilitation, training, and consulting services to bring our unique and proven methodologies to more schools, organizations, or any other groups looking to bridge divides or transform conflicts between and within communities. Our approach seeks to address issues such as gender, race, socio-economic status, sexuality, and ability, as sites of both interpersonal and structural conflict.

Facilitation

Since our founding, dialogue has been at the core of our mission. As a result, we have trained hundreds of facilitators from around the globe in a variety of methodologies to facilitate group dialogues and team building for both youth and adults. In particular, we have trained a strong network of facilitators who create spaces to address identity, power, privilege, and narrative through dialogue. Our facilitators reflect a wide variety of skill sets and experiences and can design and lead sessions specific to your needs.

Training

Seeds of Peace has developed a variety of facilitation and dialogue-based methodologies and tools that can be implemented through creative trainings at a variety of levels in professional settings, educational environments, and community spaces. These trainings include but are not limited to topics such as facilitation techniques, communication skills, managing interpersonal conflict, and general team- or group-building strategies. We can help identify problem areas and areas for growth, and lead trainings to help address these concerns.

Consulting

Seeds of Peace works with new or ongoing initiatives to help create and shape models that bridge divides and/or transform conflicts between communities. We will help you develop strategies to address the fundamental question: how do we work with the differences that exist in our community? Services include but are not limited to: helping schools, religious institutions, organizations, and communities craft meaningful dialogue experiences that engage people within their community across lines of difference to build more inclusive environments; advising on best practices for intercultural youth programs; supporting the design and implementation of educational curricula.

GATHER & FELLOWSHIPS

Accelerating Impact

Seeds of Peace accelerates the impact and influence of our alumni and other changemakers who are taking action to transform conflict in and between their communities.

1. GATHER CONVENINGS

Building a network of changemakers

Our alumni are having an impact far beyond their families, schools, and peers. As they gain influence in their societies—shaping policy and the media, starting companies and non-profits, and leading classrooms and civil society institutions—they are increasingly positioned to challenge the ideologies, policies, and practices that perpetuate conflict.

Our GATHER convenings create spaces for our leaders to connect, share, and collaborate.

policies, and practices that perpetuate conflict.

Our GATHER convenings create rare spaces for young leaders, rising professionals, educators, and a broader movement of allies to come together across sectors and lines of conflict, sparking the connections and ideas that can catalyze change.

“GATHER was more than a conference, more than an opportunity to meet people: it was a step towards a movement based on shared interests towards a just and equal future.”

2. SEEDS OF PEACE FELLOWSHIP

A targeted investment in conflict transformation

Seeds of Peace invests in alumni and other changemakers who have the greatest potential to effect social, political, and economic change in ways that can transform conflict and contribute to peace.

We offer fellowships for social entrepreneurs, civic leaders, educators, and artists whose work lies at the cusp of social change and conflict transformation. Each year, several dozen new Fellows receive small grants and technical assistance to accelerate their high-impact initiatives.

Engaging Schools and Communities

Cross-Border Capacity-Building Community & Youth Resources Lead a Delegation

The work of peace is the work of generations, and education plays a critical role in such efforts over the long haul.

For more than 20 years, we have been building a unique, reflective community of Seeds of Peace Educators from the Middle East, South Asia, the United States, and the United Kingdom, who support Seeds alumni in their home communities while reaching additional youth and adults, multiplying our impact in schools and communities across the regions where we work.

Our programs emphasize the creativity, responsibility, and influence of the teacher. We believe strongly in the importance of the educator's craft, in the arts and experiential learning, and in the potential of committed educators to inspire and cultivate new generations of global leaders.

We offer transformative learning and professional development opportunities that spark the moral imagination, build capacity and community, and empower adults and youth to transform conflict and engage effectively in social issues of pressing concern.

Our Educator Programs are divided into three main categories: Cross-Border Initiatives; Local Capacity-Building; and Community & Youth Engagement.

We also offer a variety of Educator Resources.

Educators can play a powerful role in transforming conflict, particularly by preparing young people for peace and supporting their involvement in peace-building efforts.
