"Rincon was extremely responsive to the needs of the City and regulatory agencies. The staff assigned to the project were very well qualified and experienced, which facilitated a smooth permit process for the project. All work was completed in a timely manner, which was a difficult task given the complexity of permitting a new landfill facility and the need to interface with several agencies and their respective permit processes simultaneously. Rincon kept the City well informed of species survey and permitting challenges that arose, and was always ready with solutions for those challenges. I wouldn't hesitate to hire them again for biological permitting or other environmental services."
