Review update

I feel compelled to update my review from June 20th. Don't get me wrong, I love my ewheels more than ever, but I stated previously that wheelie bars were an absolute necessity and with my Sun Mountain V1 cart, that was indeed, a true statement. My Sun Mtn. cart would even tip over when stopping in reverse. I've since switched to a CaddyTek cart and I've had no problems whatsoever without the wheelie bars and I've run it up some pretty steep slopes. My apologies to anyone who took my advice to order the wheelie bars at the same time as their ewheels, unless they had a Sun Mtn. cart, that is.

Great idea, but problems with consistency

It worked great the first few rounds, then stopped working. they sent me a new mother board. I put it in and it worked great for another two rounds. Then the entire eWheels stopped working and they are supposed to send me a new one. But I just don't have confidence in it now.

First 8 weeks

I love the eWheels thus far. I play on a very hilly course with the steepest hills coming between 16, 17 and 18. The eWheels have made it a pleasure to walk the course again. Most of the guys I've been paired with are impressed with the functionality of the remote control. Installation on my existing Sun Mountain cart was quick and easy. I'm very impressed and pleased.

ewheels are a game changer!

Been loving mines since getting them as a kickstarter. I've logged well over 25 rounds using this my first year while using it with a Sun Mountain micro cart. This year I've upgraded to a Rovic RV15 and installed the wheelie bars and I gotta say having the swivel front wheel is awesome.

Great product

I've played about 8 rounds with it so far on my Sun Mountain Speed Cart and I am very pleased. I love the portability and ease of charging. The remote works great once you figure it out. Two minor downsides.....It will tilt over backward on slopes and not even severe slopes. The fix for this is I ordered the wheelies and now have them installed for my next round I'll let you know how that goes. The second issue I haven't been able to alleviate and that's the slight pull to the left on flat surfaces. I have really gone out of my way to square the bag up and have the weight equally distributed and also have been meticulous on placing the cart on the unit making sure equal distance on each side. It just seems to me as if one wheel is slightly stronger than the other causing the pull. I actually minimized it by adding a turf repair bottle of sand to one side which helped. I think you guys should design a user adjustment. I still love it and highly recommend

Quite the site on the golf course

So far played many rounds on the course and has done very well. It is quite the conversation piece around the club house.

GAME CHANGER!!

I've had my EWheels just over two weeks now and I am so happy with them that I ordered one for my husband's Cliegear cart. Definitely a game changer for me as I have Rhumatoid Arthritis and fatigue hits me at about the 14th hole and my score reflects that. Our 9 hole course has two pretty hilly holes and they're the uphill ones of course so pushing them gets tiresome but walking them hands free is amazing. I bought the Rovic 3 wheel cart to go with mine but it's really unnecessary as I actually keep the swivel wheel in the locked position because you just have to stop or go on the lowest speed and it turns quite easily. Going uphill I definitely keep it in the locked position because it travels straighter unlike with the swivel wheel unlocked it follows the lay of the land and meanders all over the place lol. I had read a review about needing a wheelie bar but I haven't noticed a need and I have driven mine straight up the hills to test it and nothing, not even a slight tip. I mean yeah, okay, I accidentally drove it into a tree and tipped it over but hey, that's my bad. If you're like me and want to keep golfing and walking then this is the ideal way to keep that happening. I actually even managed to get 36 holes out of a single charge so that was also impressive. I really don't have any negative comments except that I'm not getting much yard work done with the amount of golfing I'm getting in!

Great piece of technology

Thanks Alphard, for making my walk that much easier. I only wish I had known about this technology sooner. What a great addition to my golf equipment. My advice: add the optional wheelie bars at the time you order your ewheels. I guarantee you'll be sorry if you don't, no matter how flat your course is, and you will end up ordering them at some point. While currently an option they should be included, even if they raise the price to cover them. They are that necessary.
