All of this is extremely exciting. This morning I was looking at inventory lists but there were so many items that we bought that just aren't moving. Seems like we are shooting in the dark, but these solutions solve that.

Currently, all our pricing research is manual. I will call competitors just to ask what they price a tire at, or go on a national retailer's website and see it there. Market Price Explorer takes all of the guess work out of that and makes it so much faster. This is solving what w hairs grey, especially stock inventory-wis assured that what warehouse is going to this.
