You'll go nuts for this herbal tea. With its crunchy almond slices, sweet apple bits and cinnamon bark, this tempting caffeine-free infusion turns a crazy shade of pink when steeped. Why? Because of its hint of earthy beetroot. Deliciously nutty, decidedly addictive, it's one of our all-time bestselling blends.

What makes it great

- Got a sweet tooth? One cup is all you need to find sweet satisfaction.
- Steeps an amazing bright pink thanks to beetroot – especially when you make it as a latte.
- Has been one of our most popular teas since day one!

One of the Best Nutty Teas
Forever Nuts is definitely one of my favorite David's Teas and a staple in my home. The nuttiness is incredible and the tea steeps to a vibrant pink color like no other tea I've seen. The only drawback to this tea is that I find you don't get a good bang for your buck, since the pieces in the tea are so large, a 2oz bag doesn't go as far as most other teas. Nonetheless, I severely hope this tea doesn't ever get discontinued like some of my other favorite nutty teas, like Nutty & Spice and Bubbie's Baklava.

Tea You can Eat.
I'm addicted to this tea. I'm so addicted that I will eat half of it raw without making it into tea. It's that good. I don't even like to strain it. I'll eat the tea and drink it.

Delicious
I received this tea and one of my samples and I made it as a latte. I tried the tea on its own and I can taste the apple and the strussel flavor they were going for. Very sweet and satisfying. I have heard countless good feedback on this tea and I would honestly repurchase. I even love the sweet pink color it steeped to. I recommend you try it and you won't be let down. I don't think I have ever had a tea or latte quite like this. It was very unique and tasty.

It's exactly as described!
This is one of my very favorites! The almond taste is undeniable, but apple and cinnamon are just as present and it all combines into one cozy cup of tea. I drink this often, both as hot and iced, and it's delicious either way....no sweetener needed. It's a lovely unexpected shade of pink as well.

This should always be in your house.
An absolutely amazing tea. It's nutty, but not on a traditional sense. A bit of a fruity undertone like a sweet beet flavor, but not something you can really put your finger on. Wonderful iced or as a latte. You should always have this on hand, as it's always a great choice.

My go to tea
Insanely enticing aroma. Porbably the best nutty/apple pie-ey tea i've ever had. My only problem is that the smell doesnt translate into the flavor as strong as i wouldve preferred. It's not weak by any means but just kinda wished there was a little more.

A Must-Have
Forever Nuts is a DT bestseller for a reason. It's absolutely delicious (particularly hot or as a latte), and tastes like drinking a freshly baked cinnamon almond cookie.

Calling this 'tea' is a stretch
I wanted to like this tea, but I was skeptical about this one from the start. It basically just looks like some chopped-up dried apples and almonds, so I figured it'd take some kind of witchcraft to get any flavor out of it. Turns out I was right. When I brewed it up, it ended up tasting like vaguely apple-scented nut water, and the taste just got more unappealing as it cooled. Double-brewing it improved it a little bit, but not enough for me to enjoy it. If you like herbal tea with a more robust flavor, I'd recommend giving this a pass.
