

When you're injured, we are there for you

Public safety jobs are physically challenging, and injuries are common.

Rebound delivers fast, high-quality care to injured workers using sports medicine principles. We prioritize quality of treatment, speed, and a concierge experience for our members that will return them to work, and their lives.

We simplify your journey through a complex healthcare system

PRIORITY ACCESS

When you call or text, we connect you with the right specialist and care team for your injury. We'll get you seen by a specialist within 24 to 48 hours and receive a definitive diagnosis within 72 hours. Our team is dedicated to your complete recovery.

EXPERT CARE

Many of our team members are former public safety workers with extensive experience in the field. They understand the unique challenges of your job and can provide the best care for your injury.

VIP TREATMENT

Our concierge service is designed to remove obstacles and ensure your treatment is going to plan. We'll handle all the paperwork and coordinate with your insurance provider.

Why our methodology makes the difference in faster healing

When a professional athlete gets injured, they get immediate access to specialists with experience in their types of injuries, and they often receive a diagnosis within hours. This expedited treatment – called sports medicine – was developed to return that player to their team healthy and as quickly as possible.

Rebound is bringing that same expedited, high-quality treatment to injured first responders because their jobs are even more physically challenging and often dangerous.

Instead of waiting weeks or months to see a specialist, Rebound members see a specialist within 24 to 48 hours and receive a definitive diagnosis within 72 hours. Also, our team follows each member through the recovery process until they return to work at 100 percent, while also keeping all stakeholders informed.
