Building safety and governance

Demonstrating building governance and safety throughout your property portfolio

Whether managing a single building or a large portfolio of buildings, safety should never be overlooked and a false sense of security endangers everyone. It is critical to have confidence that your properties are safe places for all occupants.

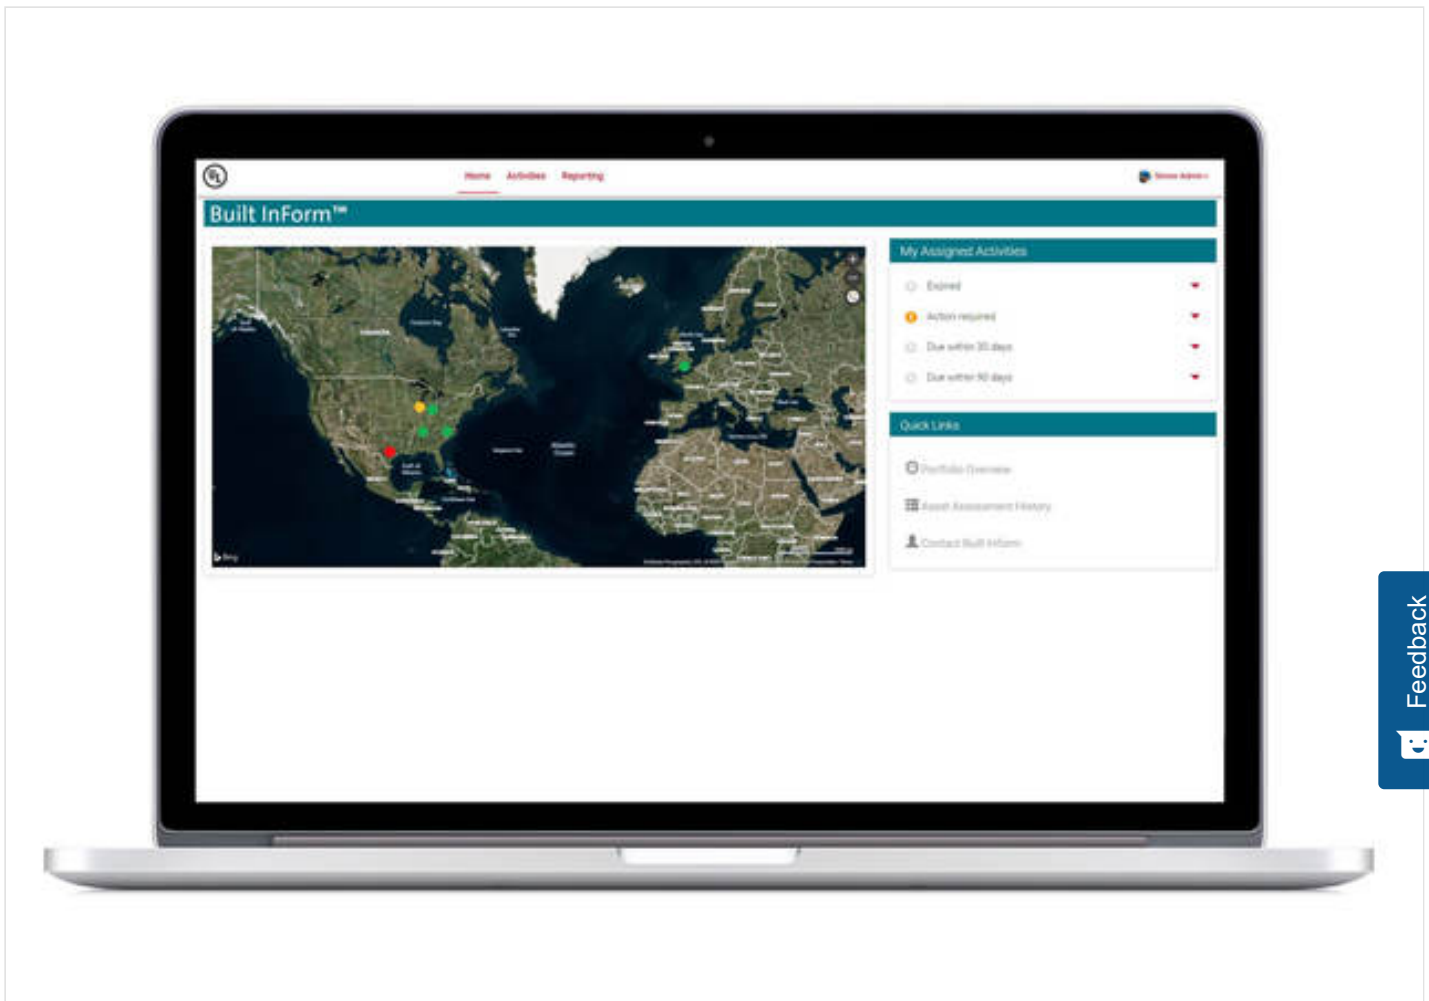

Managing safety

Revealing and addressing safety risks requires governance of safety programs and activities across your property portfolio including building systems and assemblies and the responsible persons. You need to be able to quickly identify and understand which features of your building have risk exposures – from external building envelope systems to internal critical life safety systems. Haphazard safety tracking and lax governance magnifies risks and dangers to life safety.

Software solutions - UL Built InForm™

Built InForm helps you track and manage the building features and programs throughout your property portfolio. Empower yourself with quick access to records and information to disclose to external parties as needed.

Intuitive dashboards

Put all your building profiles and digital records at your fingertips. View building features and activities, identify gaps and address risks as they arise.
