Say hello to Echo Glow

Connect this multicolor smart lamp to your Echo device, and you can ask Alexa to change the color, adjust brightness, and create helpful routines. You can also control it with a tap.

Count down visually with Rainbow Timer

As the colors of the rainbow change, it helps kids stay on track with getting ready in the morning, going to bed, and anything else in between.

Get help waking up

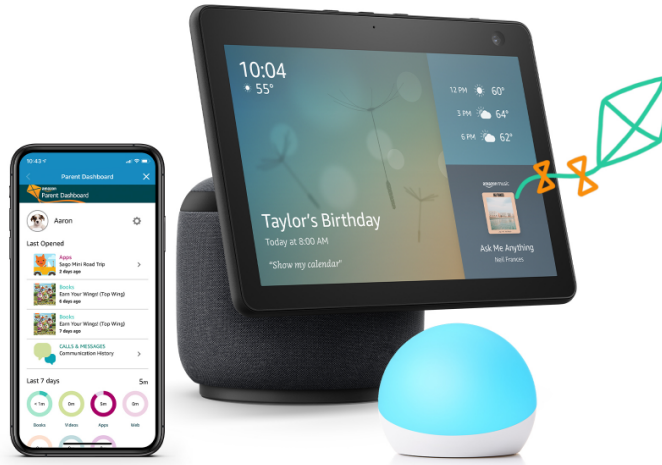

Ease into the day or out of a nap with light that gradually gets brighter until it's time to wake up.

Kids can choose and create

From bold colors to a soft, calming glow, kids can change the look of their space with just the right light. They can ask Alexa to start a dance party, have fun with dynamic modes like color flow, campfire, siren, firetruck, and underwater, and try holiday modes for Christmas, Hanukkah, Kwanzaa, and Valentine's Day. Children's privacy is important to Amazon.

Made to glow with Alexa-enabled devices

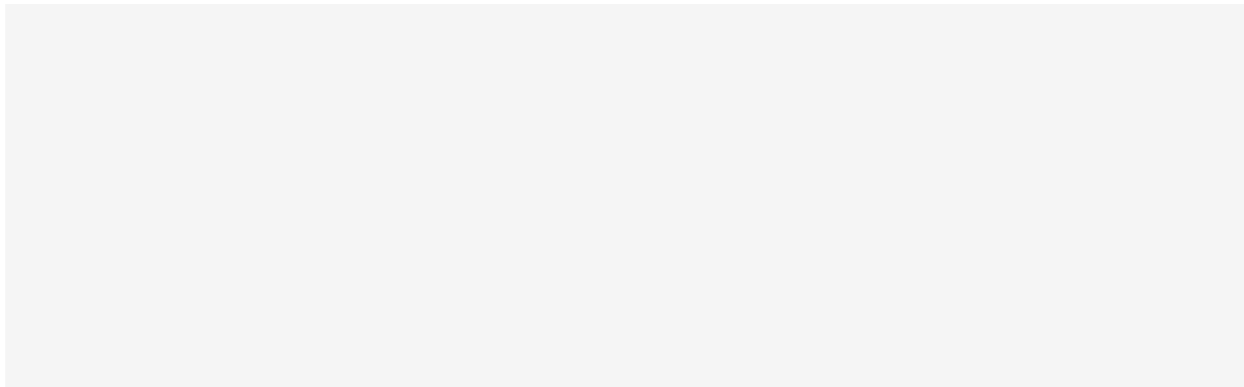

You can add the fun and function of Echo Glow to any compatible Alexa-enabled device. And by enabling Amazon FreeTime on an Echo Dot, Echo, or Echo Plus through the Alexa app, you get the peace of mind of your kids only being able to access age-appropriate content. Learn more about FreeTime.

Question: I want to add to my nighttime routine to shut off the Alexa glow- I have it set to turn on, but is there a way to add length of time to stay on?
Answer: In the Alexa App on your phone, edit your Routine that you have to turn the lamp on (access by hitting the menu bars in the upper left corner of the App). Pick Routine, then choose the Routine you have there, then pick the "Add Action" Plus sign. Choose "WAIT" from the list of actions, pick the amount of time. Then ... see more

Question: How do you get the rainbow timer to work?
Answer: Hi there! I gave the command, "Alexa, set a 5 minute rainbow timer with Sprinkles." (That's what my daughter calls it.) It cycles through the colors of rainbow. Good luck!

★★★★☆ Just a lamp, no speaker or microphone.

Reviewed in the United States on November 20, 2019

Configuration: Device only | Verified Purchase

No parents were consulted during the making or design of this device.

Been playing with the glow today with my kids. I feel like it is deceptive as it is just a light, I feel like when I preordered I was led to believe that it was an upgrade to the echo dot. I was wrong. It does not add anything in the way of a microphone or speaker. You just paid $30 for a very simple light that supposedly interacts with your existing echo devices if you say enough words. Eg you cannot just say "alexa, set rainbow timer for 30 minutes". You have to address the light specifically "Alexa, set rainbow timer for 30 minutes on <insert device name here>". Then you get a pretty light and a lot of wires because you have 2 devices plugged in rather than 1.

I would rather pay $50 for a device that had a speaker and microphone with a smaller footprint. I have plenty of smart bulbs and more than enough usb cables running around the house. It gets 2 stars for the rainbow timer feature which allows for my kids to have a visual of how much time is left.

★★★★☆ I'd wait to see if Amazon fixes it before purchasing.

UPDATE: I've had this for another 24 hours and I'm getting the feeling that this was barely tested before releasing it. As mentioned below, you can't turn the Glow off in tap mode unless you use voice commands or open the app. But you also can't use voice commands to set a timer for it. Last night I asked Alexa to turn off the Glow in one hour and it responded that it set a sleep timer. Four hours later, it's still on. I quietly had to tell

But the cat still gives it 2 stars.
 ORIGINAL POST: I know this is advertised for kids, but I bought it to replace a sun simulation alarm clock and to set up a bedtime routine. My review is a little mixed because I was able to accomplish these goals (kind of), but the actual "lap" functionality is a bit annoying. Overall I'm okay with the purchase. There are some clunky aspects that I'm betting Amazon will iron out soon.

The Good:

1. I wanted a light that would gradually turn on in the morning, didn't have to be accompanied by an alarm

★★★★☆ Not ready for prime time

Reviewed in the United States on November 20, 2019

Configuration: Device only | Verified Purchase

First off, limiting this product marketing to kids is a bad call. I think you'll find there is a much broader audience for this product.

Received mine and love the form factor, the light is very nice and bright. The features however cost this review two stars. I am always an early adopter of Alexa technology and I hope, like other products, this too will evolve. Current light settings don't really do much that a typical color smart bulb can't do already. I would very much like to see direct linking to Echo devices so that for alarms you can have a slow sunrise effect to ease your waking transition with an alarm set on your Echo Dot Clock. It would be great to interact more precisely with music playing through a linked device. Additionally I also hope you can also synchronize multiple Glows in future for great effects.

So in summary, it's a nice product, I hope it gets better!

★★★★☆ Works as reliable wake up light for kids

Reviewed in the United States on November 20, 2019

Configuration: Device only | Verified Purchase

I bought this specifically as a wake up (rather - "you can come downstairs") light for my kids. Meaning at 6:30 every day, I want the light to turn on to a specific color. A "Green means go" kinda thing. I have a "dumb" device that does this but it's a crappy cheap device and needs to be reset too often (power outages, day light savings, etc).

To achieve this, I tried to set this up in the device on the echo app, with no luck....

I figured it out later that had to set a time based routine.... per the attached picture which took me longer to figure out than it should have.

Overall meets my needs and will play with it further.
