

Ambassadors

Impactful community leaders

Women Techmakers Ambassadors are leaders around the world who are passionate about empowering their communities through organizing events, public speaking, creating content, and mentoring. With access to a global community and exclusive resources, Ambassadors are helping build a world where all women can thrive in tech.

Applications for the Ambassador program are now open! Apply now through October 31, 2022.

About the program

The Women Techmakers Ambassador program supports women in technology who are looking to create impact and give back to their communities. As an Ambassador, you'll engage with your community by participating in one or more leadership activities on a quarterly basis. Ambassadors receive support from Google and the larger Ambassador community.

Organize an event

Host a meet-up, power panel, or an International Women's Day event to educate, connect and inspire your tech community

Deliver a talk

Share your expertise on any topic. Previous ambassadors have shared their knowledge on Google technologies, DEI efforts, well-being, and more.

Create a resource

Film a video, create custom code snippets, or write a blog post, and share your knowledge with the community

Mentor others

Mentor others and help empower the next generation of technologists

Ambassador benefits

Network

Connect with 1000+ Ambassadors worldwide who are equally passionate about technology and creating a more diverse and inclusive industry

Lead

Play an active role in your tech community through organizing events, speaking, creating content, or mentoring, with support from Google

Learn

Receive exclusive access to Google-led talks and workshops on topics like developing your leadership skills and going deep on Google technologies

Shine

Be recognized for your impactful work in the community by the global Women Techmakers team
