goodwork

A creative community made for freelancers, by freelancers.

GoodWork is a creative community-led platform that connects companies with creatives to deliver ongoing content.

We believe the world needs to shift to a better way to connect projects to creative teams. We understand that companies no longer want to staff creatives as full-time employees and creatives want to do their best work in a team-based environment.

Which is why we aim to take all of the hassle out of being a solo creative freelancer so you can focus on doing your best work – in creative teams, matched with projects that are best suited for your collective skills (and availability), getting paid for your value (not the budget), and have community support to enable this change in the industry.

Welcome to GoodWork, where you can expect:

Creative work that comes to you directly. It's easy to accept and do the work directly, or join a team.

An exclusive community that delivers work opportunities, networking and support directly.

Work that pays based on a project rate you determine all handled through our platform and no fees!
