

About Hopscotch Health

It's a great day to make a life better.

At Hopscotch, we're on a mission to transform rural health in America. Learn about our story, what we believe, and meet our leaders.

Our story

We founded Hopscotch to transform rural healthcare across America through advanced primary care.

To make this happen, we knew we were going to have to build something that did not already exist: a company built with purpose and mission, that leverages the strength of communities we seek to serve, combined with incredible skill and expertise around operations and technology to enable better things for patients, caregivers, clinicians, and communities.

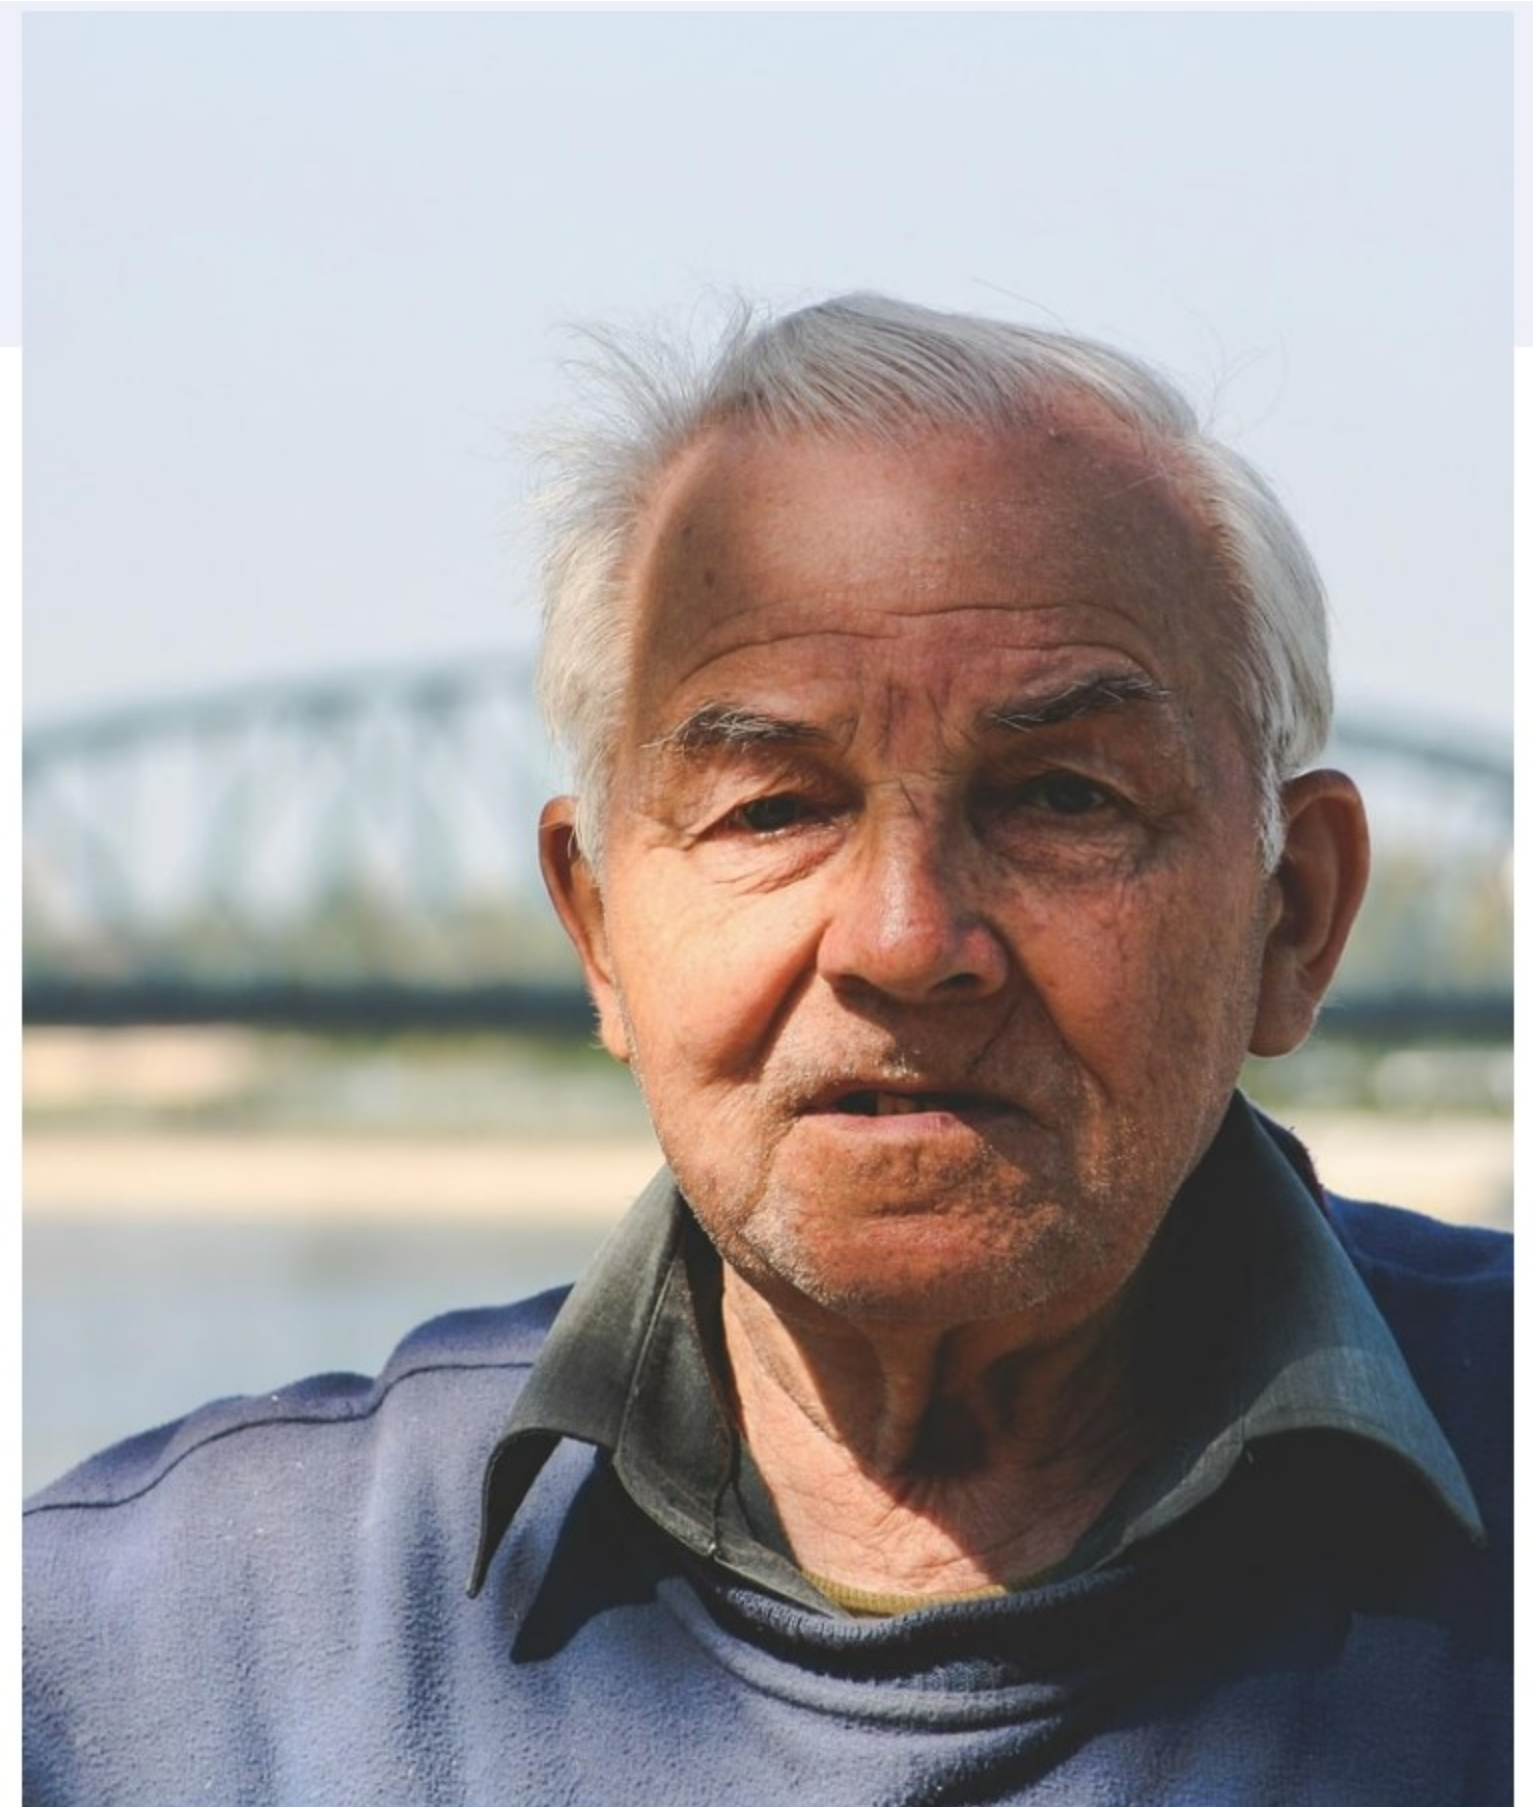

To us, the name Hopscotch represents the simplicity and accessibility we believe healthcare should have and restores the fun, nimble quickness, and passion to an industry otherwise known for complexity.

What we believe

At Hopscotch, our true north is serving our patients and the care teams who serve them. Our culture is what unifies us, underpins everything we do, and ultimately lays the foundation for us to achieve our mission and vision.

We believe that when you invest in culture, commit to values, and hand good people possibility, great things happen.

Meet our leaders

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Kristin Myers

Kristin has dedicated her entire career to healthcare and brings 20+ years of experience across the provider, clinical operations, payer, financial services, and medtech sectors to transform rural healthcare through Hopscotch. Her experience spans start-up, growth stage and large public companies.

An engineer at heart, Kristin loves to solve problems, build things, and make things better, in business, for people and for culture. She is a major advocate for health equity, value-based care and engaging physicians to accelerate innovative care models.

Kristin earned her B.S. in Biomedical Engineering from UW-Madison and her MBA from Harvard University.

“ My mission is bigger than me.

CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER

Sandeep Palakodeti

Sandeep is a primary care physician and has dedicated his career to serving patients and enabling clinicians through value-based care. Inspired by his father, a family physician beloved by his community, he has spent decades understanding our broken system and working to bring innovative ideas to life. As a serial entrepreneur and physician leader, Sandeep has focused his energy on delivering care we would all want for ourselves and our families.

Sandeep completed his undergraduate degree at the University of Dayton and a combined MD/MPH from Wright State University, trained at Kaiser Permanente and Harvard Medical School, and practiced at the Mayo Clinic and CareMore prior to joining Hopscotch.

“ Life’s most persistent and urgent question is: ‘What are you doing for others?’ -MLK
