

Many POC communities have it ingrained in our culture that our finances are meant to be private, secret, hidden, and personal, whether you have a little or a lot.

When money is a taboo, we're left feeling alone, ashamed, and afraid to truly face our finances.

Our fear and silence have kept us in the dark from not only our own knowledge and power, but the knowledge and power of our communities.

We're here to break ourselves out of the cycle, together.

See Change principles are not rooted in self-care, they are rooted in collective-care
