Horror, mirror on the wall

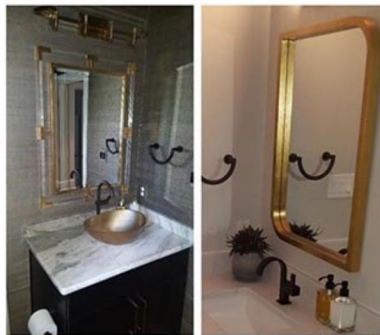

Well, it's not your ordinary mirror any more. "Statement" mirrors are seeing a surge in popularity locally. What is a statement mirror you ask? Well it's a mirror so attractive that you look at it, before you look at what's in it.

Gold leaf paint adds "bling" to an otherwise bland wood frame. Everyone looks better with some gold around their heads, just ask the Romans.

Gold is not the only popular metal. Copper is also a popular choice — it is a malleable metal with a pinkish-orange surface. When used for building, copper oxidizes and forms a green patina on the surface. Given these properties it is a fun material to be creative with and to make a statement mirror as shown.

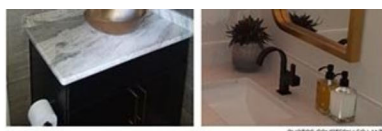

Have some fun, be bold and make a statement of your own. ■

Art Mirrors are handcrafted, hand-woven metal artwork. They are woven with copper, steel and tin, and are the creation of self-taught artists Jean and Tom Heffernan of Sedona, Ariz. The individual design elements combine to produce a unique and distinctive work of art. Each piece is constructed with 12 oz. copper, cold-rolled steel and sheet metal tin, and are woven on 3/4" cabinet grade plywood, which is painted to help retard warping. The mirrors are recessed behind the frame, and are treated with several coats of lacquer made specifically for metal to retard oxidation. Learn more about their mirrors at artmirrors.net.
