Kim Gorsuch — 6 years ago EDIT

When we were little, dad would always wake us up with a little song that he would make up. It was always something a little silly and maybe a little insulting. Something like, "You're getting so big, and you're as cute as a little pig." Said with a great big smile and a laugh. It was a great way to wake up. I often submit my own children to the same treatment. Something like, "Charlie Bradbury, you're sweet as you can be! I am glad that you're with me, even if your stinky"

Thanks grandpa, now I know where she gets it from! It does make me smile, but don't tell her that.

Her songs are kind of annoying. I usually say, "æomommâ€ but she ignores me and sings anyway. Mostly in the morning, so it's not too bad.
