DAVE'S UPDATE!

April 16th - Birdseye Maple!

Well hello there, beautiful.

Birdseye Maple is tricky to find in the larger widths we need for Drum Sets. We've made a handful over the years. Lo and behold, we found some more.

Look at that combination of grain and figure. As the wood continues to age, the color will grow darker further enhancing the birdseye pattern.

What do you think?

This is an iconic kit that will only appreciate in the years ahead.

NEW DIAMOND VIDEO

New! Diamond by Craviotto Product Video from Sam!

You are in for a treat! Enjoy Sam's newest video explaining his innovations and impetus behind Diamond Drums by Craviotto.

Dealers are referring to them as "DD" which is short and sweet. These no-nonsense professional drums sound good in big rooms, small room, and shine under mics. Take a look.

Diamond by Craviotto is "ply shells perfected" (tm).

Experience matters.

EACH CRAFTSMAN at the Craviotto Drum Company worked closely with and alongside Johnny Craviotto, our founder. Always mentoring and seeking to enrich, Johnny nurtured each craftsman through each step, only promoting when he recognized true artisanal mastery. Johnny's time-tested traditions and steadfast process for handcrafting one-ply, solid shell drums continues.

Today, four artisans carry on handcrafting drums to Johnny's precise specifications. With 57+ years of combined drum building experience working alongside Johnny, our team is committed to forwarding the legacy Johnny instituted.

Solid vs. Ply

SOLID VS. PLY . . . HERE'S WHY!

If any imperfections exist, each imperfection can drastically alter the shell's tone, integrity, and longevity.

Additionally, glues and adhesives are the common thread holding each shell together, providing shape, structure, and strength to the thin plies. The added weight of the adhesives can prohibit the shell's ability to vibrate, resonate, and project.

Craviotto solid shell drums are made from premium grade, solid wood boards. Each board is hand-selected at the source by one of our craftsmen to ensure sonic and visual excellence. Craviotto's craftsmen carefully steam-bend and meticulously hand-finish each solid board into a musical masterpiece.

Each Craviotto shell wears thousands of fingerprints from the best hands in the business.

Because Craviotto uses solid wood boards with approximately 85% less glue than ply shells, our solid shells breathe, vibrate, and resonate freely with bell-like quality, extended range, and enhanced projection. Structurally, what you see on the outside is what you see on the inside.

The difference is not only heard, but felt. Craviotto solid shell drums are a pleasure to play. From your first stroke to your fastest flurry, you'll instantly recognize the purity of tone, the dynamic potential, and the remarkable rich resonance that can be felt from the throne.

There simply is no comparison to Craviotto. Our handcrafted one-ply, solid shell drums are known the world over for their sonic purity, visual beauty, and artisanal quality. Our tuning range and vast color palette available in each instrument sets us apart in a market flooded with plywood shells.

Craviotto solid shell drums are the canvas and you are the artist. Create your masterpiece with ours.

21 Steps to Solid

HANDCRAFTING our Craviotto one-ply, solid shell takes 21 steps and a touch over six weeks to complete. While that may seem like a lot of hard work for one solid ply, we would not have it any other way. Hand-made, rooted in tradition, and crafted to in-transigent specifications, our shells really do speak for themselves.

Here is an abridged pictorial highlighting the hands of our esteemed craftsmen.

Because each shell is constructed from a solid board, each shell is distinctive. Our craftsmen assess each board from an auricular perspective and pair it with kindred counterparts, ensuring all shells complement each other visually. Early in the process, art and sound are already achieved.

AFTER CAREFUL PREPARATION and a calculated soak based on wood type and bending properties, our solid wood boards are ready to be steamed and bent. We're ready to roll.

Throughout these several steps, each Craviotto shell gets garnished with well over a thousand fingerprints. Hands on! You bet.

NOW OUR ONE-PLY, solid shell is complete and in raw form. We are ready to begin the finishing stages. Most drum builders start here. Not us, we've been at it awhile and have a way to go.

Again, we find ourselves working on each shell

21 Steps to Solid

HANDCRAFTING our Craviotto one-ply, solid shell takes 21 steps and a touch over six weeks to complete. While that may seem like a lot of hard work for one solid ply, we would not have it any other way. Handmade, rooted in tradition, and crafted to transparent specifications, our shells really do speak for themselves.

Here is an abridged pictorial highlighting the hands of our esteemed craftsmen selecting, bending, fine-tuning, and finishing each masterpiece one-ply shell.

Our journey begins at the source. Our expert craftsmen head to the mill to select each board wearing the Craviotto badge. Craviotto has a stringent set of criteria we abide by when hand-selecting wood. Some call it picky, penicillin, or snobish. We call it quality from the get-go. Going the extra mile begins with our very first step.

ONCE CUT TO SIZE, our craftsmen begin the careful process of selecting each board for each drum for each unique order. This step requires experience and a masterful eye.

Because each shell is constructed from a solid board, each shell is distinctive. Our craftsmen assess each board from an auricular perspective and pair it with kindred counterparts, ensuring all shells complement each other visually. Early in the process, art and sound are already achieved.

AFTER CAREFUL PREPARATION and a calculated soak based on wood type and bending properties, our solid wood boards are ready to be steamed and bent. We're ready to roll.

We defer to the old way of bending wood – using steam, strength, and sweat. These traits are the backbone of making drums Johnny's way, developed over many years of painstaking research. The legacy continues.

AS SOON AS THE SHELLS are completely dry and thoroughly inspected, we move to the production phase.

Comprised of multiple steps, the production process incorporates our craftsmen's individual talents, specialized skillsets, and features plenty of old-fashioned handwork.

Throughout these several steps, each Craviotto shell gets garnished with well over a thousand fingerprints. Hands on! You bet.

NOW OUR ONE-PLY, solid shell is complete and in raw form. We are ready to begin the finishing stages. Most drum builders start here. Not us, we've been at it awhile and have a way to go.

Again, we find ourselves working on each shell with our hands – from sanding to edging to oiling, to sealing to assembling, and so on. More fingerprints don our shells from the hardest working drum craftsmen around. As our solid shells pass through the each step in the process, we're checking and re-checking to ensure each shell exceeds our austere standards.

IT IS TIME TO seal the deal. No drum leaves our workshop unless it receives the seal of approval from several of our craftsmen. With over 50 years of experience in the QC department, discerning eyes inspect and seasoned ears listen to each drum. Finally, this Craviotto drum is ready to enter the musical universe. While our fun is done, yours is just beginning.
