Attention Please

- Please Scrape off the black coating on the surface of flint strips for the first time use. The black plating and small contact area are both not good for spark making.
- Re-dip the wick with lighter fluid as soon as the cotton burns in red. This will prolong the working life of the wick.
- Don't fill too full. Too much lighter fluid in the wick is another reason that fail to ignite fire.
- The exposed part of the wick should be at least half of the length of the exposed scraper, or else it may be more difficult to ignite.
- Be Careful! Never put your finger toward the scraping direction, or else the scraper may hurt your finger.

HOW TO USE?

- Unscrew the rod and add lighter fluid first (no fuel included).
- Screw the scraper back and wait 3 Min, let the cotton and wick fully absorb the lighter fluid.
- Holding the scraper at a 45-degree angle with the flint. Push hard and slide downward to ignite.

Your commercial shows the match burning but the match does not burn on any of the 4 I purchased. It just sparks. Big difference.

I love this keychain, it's very sturdy holds my keys and they are organized. It has a bottle opener, carabiner and striking match watch magnesium strip. I bought one for a friend of mine. I'm going to buy another for my other spare keys.

I bought this key chain w/ flint match as a stocking stuffer for my husband for Christmas. He absolutely loved it! He thought it was really unique gift, as well as being very practical and something he felt he could use on a regular basis. So glad I purchased this!!

Cool little thing, bought this for my very outdoors / boy-scout focused nephew for Christmas and he's loving it. (I, of course, had to test it out before handing it off....and I think I'm going to buy one for myself) Feels like good, solid, all-metal construction - should last him awhile getting bashed around on hikes and campouts. Pretty happy with the purchase!

I think the two they shipped us was used and returned. At least the flint part already had marks where it was already used.

Well, just gave this lighter as a gift to my husband. We struggled to get it to work & now it doesn't work & it's now beyond the return deadline. It's a dud!
