DANA POINT HARBOR'S REVITALIZATION PLANS CONTINUE TO EVOLVE

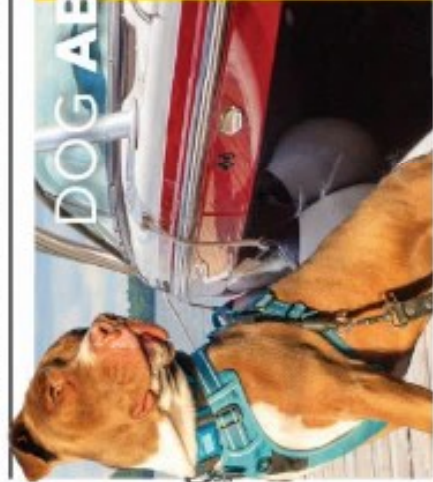

PAGE 8

A quiet on the Dana Point Harbor waterfront – too quiet. Perhaps it was because Dana Point Harbor Partners, the collaborative entity tasked with revitalizing Orange County's southernmost harbor, has been tweaking its plans. The updates were recently presented to the Dana Point City Council. The council members were pleased with the changes. P. 8

STANDING WATCH:
KING HARBOR MOORING FIELD REVENUES DON'T COVER
MAINTENANCE COSTS: SHOULD IT BE REDUCED?

Federal and state funds were used to establish a mooring field at King Harbor – but the field is so sparingly used, there isn't enough money coming in from boaters to cover its basic maintenance costs. What should Redondo Beach do about the mooring field? P. 4

DOG ABOARD

END OF WATCH: NEWPORT BEACH HARBOR
COMMISSIONER PAUL BLANK COMPLETES TERM

Newport Beach Harbor Commissioner Paul Blank completes his eight-year tenure on the dais, with his term on one of the city's most visible advisory boards officially ending on June 30. Blank sat down with The Log and reflected on his time as a Harbor Commissioner. P. 14
