Built From the Ground Up

Delta Millworks is a culmination of the lessons learned, techniques mastered, and clients serviced over our 34 years of history. You can see it in our technique, the quality of the wood we sell, and most of all, and in our opinion most importantly, in the way that we build relationships with our customers.

At Delta, we are passionate about the use of wood in today's design and building industries. We want to tell the story of wood with a creative approach, a focus on the future, and a belief that the use of wood can add value and natural beauty to both commercial and residential projects.

Committed to the Future of Wood

The future of wood and forests rely on sustainable practices. We take great pride in offering exclusively sustainably-sourced wood products and choose to work with companies that utilize clean technologies that extend the life of wood, resulting in products engineered to a superior performance standard.

Good With Wood, Real With People

We understand that numerous expectations must be met to ensure our products play their part in the design and construction of a world-class project. We know wood better than just about anyone and we understand the importance of having a reliable partner at the other end of the line when you have a question about your project.

EXTERIOR

Delta Millworks'® exterior cladding products are made to last, providing beauty and longevity in unforgiving environments. European-produced modified woods like Accoya® and Kebony® utilize the world's best technologies in wood modification and provide products that can hold up for decades due to the clean treatment process they go through.

We offer high quality domestic options, such as our Western Red Cedar and Old Souls™ reclaimed barnwood collections. All of our finishes and coatings are performance-tested and result in beautiful, low-maintenance exterior wood options; combining function, quality, design, and value. All of our work is done with sustainability in mind and a deep reverence for the wood itself.

COMMERCIAL

Delta Millworks partners with commercial clients around the world, offering versatile wood products with rich personalities that create distinct spaces in any setting. We enjoy working closely with commercial architects, designers, and builders to ensure that both style and quality are delivered in the finished product.

The process of working with us on a commercial product is truly an end-to-end collaboration. From working around your designs to find the exact wood type and treatment for the project, to closely monitoring time frames so that delays are avoided, we thrive when we are in the trenches with your team. Even after delivery is complete, we make ourselves available to answer any questions you may have.
