Great Shoe - well made.

These shoes are very well constructed and breathable. The protection cups in the ankle fit very well with no pressure points; you cant tell they are there. The fit is snug with a slightly narrow feel, kinda like an Adidas or Asics would fit. I wear a size 12 and the 45 fit perfect. Overall, these are pricey, but I am really happy with them. I can see another pair in my future.

Surprisingly nice

Much nicer than I expected. Well-made, durable (although I still sprayed with waterproofing for that extra layer of protection) and damn good looking sneak! Lacking a little in the comfy department, but nothing Dr Shoes couldn't fix. Win

Fit great, work great.

I've have around 600 riding miles on these shoes so far. I like them a lot. They fit and feel great. While that's not nearly enough miles for a durability test, at this point they don't show any glaring signs of future problems.

Size-wise, I typically wear a US 10 1/2 wide. The 44's fit me perfectly. There's a little extra toe room in there so if you're an 11 regular width you'll probably also be in good shape. As with any riding boot, I replace the stock insoles with gels and my sizing comments are based on using gels. The stock insoles seemed kind of thin.

Air flow seems good. It hasn't gotten killer hot here yet but I can definitely feel air getting to my feet. I've used them on a couple cooler days with warm socks and I was comfy.

The protection is what I expected for a casual style riding shoe. Toe and ankle stuff is in there. If you're doing track days or hammering sketchv stuff in the twisties you shouldn't be looking at this kind of shoe IMO.

I like the look of these. Casual style, can definitely wear them to work or etc and not look out of place.

They come with 2 sets of laces, one 'dirty white' and the other black.
