★★★★☆ Keep looking, this won't protect from a drop.

This case appears to be like every other one made for the S8 series. The pictures were carefully staged so as not to show that from the side, the case offers zero protection for the "edge" glass. My daughter bought this one based on the reviews. We were in a sandwich shop, sitting down and her phone slid from her lap to the floor, about two feet. I laughed and said it was a good thing she bought the case. As she laughed and inspected the phone, her face suddenly changed and tears welled up in her eyes. The screen had a fine spider-web crack that started on the left edge (point of impact) and spread across the entire screen. The bumper / case is cut down below the point where the front glass meets the "casing" of the phone, the entire length of the phone. When it fell, it must have dropped left side first with the right side up by 20-85 degrees (estimate) because at that angle the side "edge" is totally exposed and vulnerable. I had a ballistic glass protector on it too; it was totally fine. The impact was between where the case ends and the ballistic glass starts. The phone is two weeks old, $750, and now a $200 repair bill. If you want to protect it, get an Otterbox!

This case looks pretty good, but doesn't really offer much protection.

EDIT/Update: I spoke too soon. I've now had this case for several months. My initial reaction to this case was an assumption that it wouldn't offer much protection. Apparently, I was very wrong. This case is just so low-profile that it LOOKS like it doesn't really offer any protection. I have in the past several months dropped my phone many times (once from on top of a roof), flung it across the room, and kicked it across concrete. There's still not a scratch, crack, dent, or ding to be found on my phone (and this is an all glass phone, people!). Whatever these folks are doing, it's working. Don't let the sleek appearance fool you, this case is a beast.

★★★★★ My first Spigen

July 11, 2017

Color: Burgundy / Champagne Gold | Verified Purchase

I looked at several brands and models while researching phone cases for my new Galaxy S8 (Caseology, Ubittek, other Spigen cases). I loved my previous Caseology case for my S4 but I ended up choosing this one since it has the protection of the hard bumper frame along with the lightweight sleekness of the TPU body, which I prefer over silicone or other plastics. Very sleek and fits perfectly. Comfortable fit- not too tight, not too loose. It slips off easily when I want it to, but I'm not worried about it coming off. The side buttons are covered by the TPU body, but it makes no difference in button sensitivity. I did worry about the screen's curved edges on the sides, but the lip of the case comes up high enough that it shouldn't be a problem. I feel that if something does damage the screen one day, it would've happened regardless of whatever case I purchased. You just can't really win with the curved edges, but this seems like the best I could do. On the top and bottom of the screen, the lip is raised slightly more so it won't touch the surface of a table if placed face-down. I also bought the Spigen case-friendly screen protector, and after applying it, it doesn't run into the sides of the case despite the curved edges. The Burgundy/Gold is true to the preview photo. I will definitely update if I have any issues in the future.

★☆☆☆☆ Horrible Staining

Color: Pale Dogwood | Verified Purchase

I am very picky about pretty much everything and spend untold hours doing research on items before I purchase. As it happens, this is one of the only cases offered for the S8 in a light, feminine color that does a decent job of protecting. HOWEVER, it is pretty much a wash because after a period of only a few weeks, the case looks like it has been abused. I do carry my phone in my back pocket a lot, but if I had known that it would look so disgusting as a result, I might have tried to curb that habit. Also, there is some light chipping on the hard gold part at one of the corners where it meets the rubber. I am severely disappointed in this case and don't really know what other option I have. I have been cleaning the case with wipes that should clean all manner of dirt and oil and... nothing. I am stuck with a gross looking phone. And it only looked good for about a week.

★★★★★ Good Case... Only ONE Minor Flaw

May 6, 2017

Color: Violet / Platinum Gold | Verified Purchase

This is a very good case, but it's not 5-star perfect. The fit is excellent, and the edge view is not blocked in any way. The case WOULD be perfect if it had ONE thing... a slip-resistant backing. The herringbone pattern is pretty, but the material could have more grip (like a softer rubber feel). Because of that this phone can easily slip off the counter with this case, as there is hardly any grip. The case does protect pretty well, I imagine. I haven't dropped the phone. I just think a better material for grip would be awesome!

★★★★☆ Good protection, aesthetics easily marred

July 14, 2017

Color: Gunmetal / Black | Verified Purchase

This is a decent case as far as protection goes and aesthetically pleasing when brand new but I had this case about a month and it looks fairly worn even though it spends much time inside my pocket. The problem is the hard plastic component is simply painted instead of a uniform color throughout. The surface paint rubs off and you are left with areas of white plastic underneath. If it had been a black plastic, it would be better than having white show through on an otherwise black and dark gray case. It has had one decent drop, a few small drops and has done its job appropriately. I will use it until either it breaks or it becomes too tattered looking. Otherwise, it is a great case. I love the slim profile for the face side of the phone. Yes, the rubberized portion could be a lot more slip resistant but I am OK with it as is.
