Medical Marijuana Resources

MarijuanaDoctors.com offers a wide range of medical marijuana resources for both patients and doctors. This is a relatively new subject area for many people, so there are many questions regarding the types of conditions that can be treated using marijuana, how to approach patients who request medicinal pot, what areas of the country allow medical marijuana and many, many others.

These are just a few of the medical marijuana resources we offer:

Medical Marijuana Recommendations

One misconception a lot of people have when it comes to medical marijuana is how they go about getting a "prescription" for weed. The reality is they don't.

What patients get is a certified recommendation from their doctor, which they can then take to a local dispensary in order to obtain the marijuana they need. The topic of recommendations is one of the most important medical cannabis resources we offer — we can show you what to expect during a medical marijuana evaluation and much more.

Catering to the digital demand for online medical marijuana services, MarijuanaDoctors.com is pleased to announce that it's fully-integrated, e-visit patient and physician medical marijuana Telemedicine Portal is now live, giving qualified patients the technological ability to see a medical marijuana doctor online, on-demand and in real-time — instead of in-person.

With the passage of telemedicine legislature in California, Connecticut, Maine, Nevada, New York, and Rhode Island, patients may now access medical care from virtually anywhere — the telemedicine portal allows qualified patients to remotely connect with a qualified and licensed marijuana doctor on-demand, and in real-time, from a secure and trusted online platform.

Designed as a complete medical marijuana solution for doctors recommending (prescribing) medical marijuana in their respective state, the largest nationwide network of marijuana doctors online — in states where medical marijuana is legal — gives network physicians the ability to not only become relevant in the online medical marijuana space, but also cement their digital footprint ultimately allowing them to rise in the relevant search rankings, online.

Marijuana doctors are in a position to cut costs and save time, making their practice more profitable. The telemedicine portal provides physicians with calendaring abilities, a patient verification service, and a vital patient symptom tracker. Telemedicine medical marijuana doctors also have unlimited access to a recommendation generator for each legal medical marijuana state, with the added ability of being able to acquire a digital upload of the patient's drivers license, and digital signature, as well.

"Instead of going through the assembly line at a medical office, marijuana doctors are now able to have a substantial and private discussion with each patient about using medical cannabis," says Dr. Helene Malabed, one of 10 physicians who beta tested the MarijuanaDoctors.com Telemedicine Portal.
