

A. Section 2(d) Objection

The Examining Attorney has preliminarily refused to register Applicant's mark on the ground that it may be confusingly similar to a prior filed application for the mark BODYPRO STRENGTH & Design, Ser. No. 87755941 (which has now matured to registration, Reg. No. 6004908). Applicant respectfully disagrees. As discussed in detail below, the cited mark is comprised of highly suggestive, if not descriptive terms, and thus should be deemed weak and entitled to only a narrow scope of protection. In that context, the marks' appearance, pronunciation, meaning and overall consumer impression, as well as the goods they identify, are sufficiently different to avoid consumer confusion.

In determining whether a likelihood of confusion exists, the fundamental inquiry goes to “the cumulative effect of the differences in the essential characteristics of the goods and differences in the marks” at issue. Federated Foods, Inc. v. Fort Howard Paper Co., 192 U.S.P.Q. 24, 29 (C.C.P.A. 1976). It is quite possible for no likelihood of confusion to exist even between marks that may appear substantially similar in the abstract, where the marks themselves are weak and entitled to a narrow scope of protection.

1. The Cited Mark is Highly Suggestive and Weak

When comparing two marks for likelihood of confusion, an examining attorney must first look at the marks themselves for similarities in appearance, sound, connotation, and commercial impression. Palm Bay Imports Inc. v. Veuve Cliquot Ponsardin Maison Fondee En, 396 F.3d 1369 (Fed. Cir. 2005). Moreover, a crucial factor in determining likelihood of confusion is the strength of the predecessor's mark. See Knight Textiles

Corp. v. Jones Invest. Co., 75 USPQ2d 1313, 1316 (TTAB 2005) (finding no likelihood of confusion between the mark ESSENTIALS and NORTON MCNAUGHTON ESSENTIALS, both for women's clothing). The strength of a mark depends on its distinctiveness in the mind and perception of relevant consumers. See Lang v. Retirement Living Pub. Co., 949 F.2d 576, 581 (2d Cir. 1991) ("Ultimately, the strength of a mark turns on its "origin-inducing" quality, in the eye of the purchasing public."). The mere presence of a common, highly suggestive or descriptive term is usually insufficient to establish a likelihood of confusion. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Hofman, 258 F.2d 953 (CCPA 1958).

Here, the cited mark is inherently weak, as it is comprised of terms that are highly suggestive, if not merely descriptive, of the goods that mark identifies, namely: "knee guards for athletic use; weight lifting belts; weight lifting gloves". First, the word BODYPRO is highly suggestive for athletic equipment of the type identified in this registration, as it suggests that the goods are of "professional" grade and to be used for fitness, namely, improving the human body.

Evidencing the highly suggestive nature of the component terms of the cited mark, the USPTO has registered several BODYPRO marks, owned by unrelated parties, including:

- BODYPRO, Reg. No. 4785418, for "counseling services in the fields of health, nutrition and lifestyle wellness; health care; health care services, namely, providing individualized programs to promote health and wellness of the body and spirit
- BODYPRO, Reg. No. 4723713, for "massage tables
- BODYPRO, Reg. No. 4472363, for "mattress toppers; mattresses and pillows"

- BODYPRO & Design, Reg. No. 4701983, for "heartbeat measuring apparatus"

Copies of the TESS and TSDR records for the referenced marks are attached as Exhibit A. Like the cited mark, each of the referenced BODYPRO marks identifies goods related to body health and wellness.

Similarly, the words "Body" and "Pro", when viewed separately, are highly suggestive, if not merely descriptive, of the registrant's goods. A search of the USPTO TESS database for marks that identify goods in Class 28 related to health and fitness identified 75 active registrations for marks that feature the term PRO (Exhibit B) and 122 active registrations for marks that feature the term BODY (Exhibit C).¹

The USPTO has also registered numerous marks that feature the term STRENGTH or the equivalent term STRONG for health and fitness goods in Class 28. A search for actively registered marks that include the word STRENGTH for health and fitness goods in Class 28 identified 39 records (Exhibit D) and a similar search for the word STRONG identified 25 records (Exhibit E).²

While not evidence that these marks are in use, these registrations are evidence that the USPTO has consistently and repeatedly concluded that marks identifying health and fitness goods in Class 28 are not confusingly similar to each other simply because they share the words BODYPRO or STRENGTH. More pointedly, these search results show that others in the field have considered the word to have suggestive significance.

¹ Given the volume of USPTO records referenced in this office action, Applicant is providing the results of its search of the TESS database, but not the underlying TESS and TSDR records. Applicant will provide copies of those records upon request.

² Given the volume of USPTO records referenced in this office action, Applicant is providing the results of its search of the TESS database, but not the underlying TESS and TSDR records. Applicant will provide copies of those records upon request.

See Knight Textiles Corp., 75 USPQ2d at 1316-1317.

Indeed, Applicant's evidence exceeds that presented in the Knight Textiles case, where the applicant relied on 23 registrations for ESSENTIALS-formative marks in the clothing field to demonstrate that no party should be able to claim exclusive rights to the term. Id. See also Kayser-Roth Corp. v. Morris & Co., Inc., 164 USPQ 153 (TTAB 1969) (finding that the suggestive term ESQUIRE had been registered many times for a wide variety of products including clothing, the Board held that the overall differences in the marks PAUL JONES ESQUIRE and ESQUIRE, both for men's clothing, were sufficient to avoid a likelihood of confusion).

The sixth du Pont factor requires consideration of the number and nature of similar marks in use on similar goods and services. The TTAB has ruled that "even where the specific extent and impact of the usage has not been established," evidence of third-party trademark registrations is relevant to show that a term "is relatively weak" and that "customers have been educated to distinguish between different marks on the basis of minute distinctions." Jack Wolfskin Ausrustung Fur Draussen GmbH v. New Millennium Sports, S.L.U., 797 F.3d 1363 (Fed. Cir. 2015) (quoting Juice Generation, Inc. v GS Enters. LLC, 794 F.3d 1334 (Fed Cir. 2015)). Accordingly, these third party registrations demonstrate that the cited mark should be deemed weak and accorded only a very narrow scope of protection. See In re Boston Juicery, LLC, Ser. No. 86877537 (TTAB August 21, 2018) (non-precedential) (finding 12 third-party registrations for marks that shared the term SQUEEZE with the applicant's mark and the mark cited under a Section 2(d) refusal were sufficient to demonstrate that the cited mark was weak and entitled to a narrow scope of protection, due to the suggestive nature of the term SQUEEZE for the parties' goods). See also J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition § 11:90 (4th ed. 2012) (“[Third-party] registrations ... show that the PTO, by registering several marks with such a common segment, recognizes that portions of such composite marks other than the common segment are sufficient to distinguish the marks as a whole and to make confusion unlikely.”).

The coexistence of the marks listed above also demonstrates that the owners of the cited registrations have not objected to the later registration of other marks including the terms BODY, PRO or STRENGTH for related goods. See In re Republic Clothing Corporation, Ser. No. 85450953 at 4.

2. The Parties' Marks are Sufficiently Different to Avoid Confusion

As the cited mark is weak, it follows that no prospective consumer would mistakenly assume that the goods offered under the parties' marks share a common source by virtue of their shared use of the terms PRO and STRENGTH. See In Re Bed & Breakfast Registry, 229 U.S.P.Q. 818, 819 (Fed. Cir. 1986) (when analyzing the likelihood of confusion between two marks that share similar words, a large number of third party uses of the shared words weighs against the reasonableness of the assumption that the two services come from the same source).

Both parties' marks feature prominent and unique design elements that go far to differentiate them. The cited mark depicts the term BODYPRO in large letters, overwhelming the smaller term STRENGTH, and all surrounded by a shape that evokes the image of a boxer's championship belt, particularly given the nature of registrant's goods. Applicant's mark features the term PRO in large letters, with the word

Mark: PROSTRENGTH
Ser. No. 88483046

STRENGTH appearing in an elongated oval stemming from the letter "O" in PRO. Thus, Applicant's mark creates a distinct visual impression. In view of the weakness of the registrant's mark, these differences are sufficient to avoid consumer confusion and Applicant's mark is entitled to registration.
