

DRIVE POLITELY™

	Maybe someone genuinely didn't see the sign or your car due to poor vision so before you get angry give them the benefit of the doubt.	Pg.34
	Maybe due to bad hearing the driver can't hear you beeping, try flashing your lights a few times to grab their attention.	Pg.36
	Showing a gesture of apology to another driver if you made a mistake or there was a miscommunication will reduce the risk of road rage. Give a little wave or mouth 'I'm sorry!	Pg.37
	Only honk your horn when necessary. People around tend to always assume it was directed at them and become offended.	Pg.38
	Don't be that guy who pumps gas with the doors open and music blasting. No one likes him.	Pg.39
	Don't litter! Throwing items out your window not only is bad for the environment but can cause serious damage to vehicles around you. Something as small as a penny can crack a windshield if the speed is high enough.	Pg.39
	Don't aggressively honk your horn at the person ahead of you when the light just turns green. Remember they must look left, right, left again it's the safe thing to do.	Pg.50
	Signaling your desired direction at forks in the road. Especially if oncoming traffic in one direction has a stop, it lets those drivers know your intent.	Pg.112
	If you drove by a hazard in the road give a passing driver a quick flash of the lights so they can slow down and get ready for it.	Pg.175
	Slow down and let the car safely pass you, even if you are going the speed limit. If you are experiencing mechanical problems or weather is causing you to drive below the limit, wave them around you if the other vehicle is not sure to pass or stay.	Pg.183

DRIVE POLITELY™

	While merging it is polite and safer to go behind a car than to speed up and cut a driver off.	Pg.189
	If you see a vehicle approaching fast from behind you, move out of their way and back over to the travel lane. We don't belong there anyway.	Pg.191
	If a car is passing you be nice and slow down to give them even more space to get around you safely. Even if that means going a little below the speed limit.	Pg.193
	Being in a broke down car on the side of the highway is terrifying, be nice and move over a lane to ease the peoples worries. The wind of your car going by sways the disabled vehicle.	Pg.195
	Slow down and scan the scene. Being a construction worker is hard as it is, they shouldn't have to be worried about getting nailed by your car too	Pg.196
	Unspoken Rules of the Road <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Co pilot oversees directions and not allowed to sleep2. Driver has the choice of what music to listen to3. Driver chooses where they stop for food	Pg.203
	Passenger etiquette: What you bring into the car you take out.	Pg.204
	If someone is broken down on the side of the road, be nice and pull over to see if they need help or need to make a phone call for assistance.	Pg.225
	Don't rubberneck! The people in the collision are already having a horrible day, starring at them makes it 10x worse.	Pg.234
	If we drive with each other rather against each other the road will be peaceful and stress free!	Pg.268
