

Arrive

JULY/AUGUST 2011

Food & Drink

Boldly go where adventurous eaters dare to dine

Business Class

Can high art and mass commerce coexist?

SPECIAL GUIDE:
TOP-RATED
WOMEN LAWYERS in the Northeast Corridor

Laura LINNEY

What makes a great actress tick?
Funnyman Mo Rocca finds out

Contents

JULY/AUGUST 2011

ARRIVEMAGAZINE.COM

DEPARTMENTS

Page 34

Page 52

ALL ABOARD

8 Full Speed Ahead

BUSINESS CLASS

34 The Big Business of Museums

A new breed of museum director is bringing business marketing savvy and P.T. Barnum-worthy showmanship to the world of culture.

FOOD & DRINK

52 Feeding Frenzy

Adventurous eaters will go to any lengths to devour the strangest dishes on earth.

FINAL STOP

112 Why I Love ... New York

Tennis star Patrick McEnroe celebrates his hometown during his favorite time of the year: U.S. Open season.

Contributors, page 6
Station/Route maps, page 108
Puzzles, page 110

It's not like we all aspire to extreme eating. But in the past decade or so even some of the most demure eaters have been desensitized. We're becoming a little more adventurous—and it shows on our plates. — PAGE 52

17

FIRST CLASS

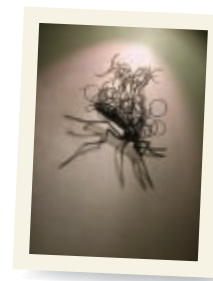

Listen to the music of the great outdoors
• A healthy day in Providence • Sculptor Jaime Plensa unveils Echo • Tough tech • Should you say good day to your 401 (k)? • The rise of the microspirit • This Bastille Day, party like it's 1789 • Ice caves in New York ...

77

CITY GUIDE

Druid Hill Park • What makes you smile? • The Bard of Avon does Boston • Sand sculpting festival • Harlem Week • The Summer of Washington • Bono and the boys in Philadelphia • Stars over Providence • Civil War in 3-D • Wilmington's August Quarterly ...

100

UP TO SPEED

Shakespeare under the stars • Trompe l'oeil in Delaware • A Hitchcock retrospective • Cuban art and all that jazz • Mummies of the world • Rhode Island meteor shower • Vermont summer horse show • Owney the Dog • Catch the Washington Ballet ...

Mosquito I, 2007. Larry Kagan. Steel with shadow. 29 x 38 x 16 inches. Courtesy of the artist.