Peas in a Pod® ("PPI") is an egg donation agency headquartered in Southern California with an egg donor program of over 1,100 donors.

PPI formed itself as a California Corporation in April of 2008. The founder brings a background of over 18 years of experience in the fertility industry. PPI further expresses its values and uniqueness in a personal vision of an egg donation agency and its place in the fertility industry.

PPI is a national egg donation agency with its principal office in Glendora, CA. Services are provided to infertile couples and individuals to assist them in starting and/or expanding their families. The staff offers a personal and private environment and genuinely takes the time to get to know each prospective parent and donor. PPI's selective screening process enables them to meet the recipients' and donors' individual needs and provide each party with enough education for a mutually positive and successful experience. PPI welcomes and encourages donors from all different backgrounds and cultures to apply and prides itself with offering its clients quality donors with numerous diverse characteristics.

The PPI web site has been carefully formed to appeal to all people, including those new to the Internet, to make the process of becoming a donor and donor selection for recipient couples of great ease. The online donor database currently offers over 1,100 available donors. PPI is one of the few agencies offering online access to donor profiles at no charge to intended parents.

PPI has selectively chosen their team of experts to include the most renowned and respected attorneys, clinical psychologists and geneticists. PPI prides itself in its professional outreach and involvement in the fertility industry. Affiliations include the American Society of Reproductive Medicine, Path2Parenthood, National Association of Professional Women, and the Egg Donation and Surrogacy Professional Association to name just a few. PPI is an FDA Registered agency with an established Advisory Board of industry professionals. PPI contributes a percentage of each match to a select handful of non-profit organizations.

PPI's founder and caring professional team strive to make the egg donation process a positive experience and truly treasure family values and understand how children can bring great joy into the lives of others.
