Getting paid

When a payout is ready to be paid to you, it will be released to your payout method for processing. You can check the status of your payouts at any time from your transaction history.

Setting a default

If you plan on adding more than one payout method, learn about setting a default.

More info

Here's more info about adding some of the available payout method types:

- Bank transfer/direct deposit: Use info from a check to enter your bank transfer/direct deposit routing number and account number. Wait for a small deposit to confirm your account is ready. "For Further Credit" accounts (FFC) are not supported.
- International wire: Depending on your location, you'll need to enter your account number or IBAN, which your bank can provide. Fees may apply. More about international wire transfers.
- Payoneer bank transfer/debit card: Enter your name as it appears on your official ID. Payoneer needs to approve your details before you can receive payouts. More about Payoneer debit card.
- PayPal: Make sure that your account is activated on PayPal before adding it as a payout method. More about PayPal.
- Western Union: Enter your name as it appears on your official ID. Fees apply. More about Western Union.
- AIS debit card: This payout method no longer available because of United States government restrictions. If you previously used an AIS card, you'll need to set up a new payout method that's available for your country or region.

Note: Hosts in mainland China can only use Alipay and Payoneer as their payout method, and hosts in Russia can only use Payoneer as their payout method.
