Service commitment

Architecture begins with the promise that architects give to their clients. The design and the resulting building must fulfil this promise.

The responsibility for achieving this requires the assistance of experts – particularly in the complex facade area. That's why FRENER & REIFER offers its partnership as a full-service facade provider:

professional solution accompaniment for architects, engineers and clients throughout the entire process – from tender, consulting, developing, prototyping, planning, manufacturing, installing, commissioning, maintaining, revitalising right through to acceptance and service.
