It's name time.

If you want to gain credibility online and show customers you're the real deal, your business needs a domain name. Having your own domain names protects your brand and helps you rank higher in search, too. Already own a domain name? Connect it to your website in just a few steps.

DOMAIN NAMING TIPS

Choose the right domain name.

Here are a few tips to help you find one that's unique (and not already taken).

Keep it concise

The most memorable sites online typically have short, punchy names: Google, Ebay, Apple. This also makes them easy to type into web browsers and share on social media.

Choose the best extension

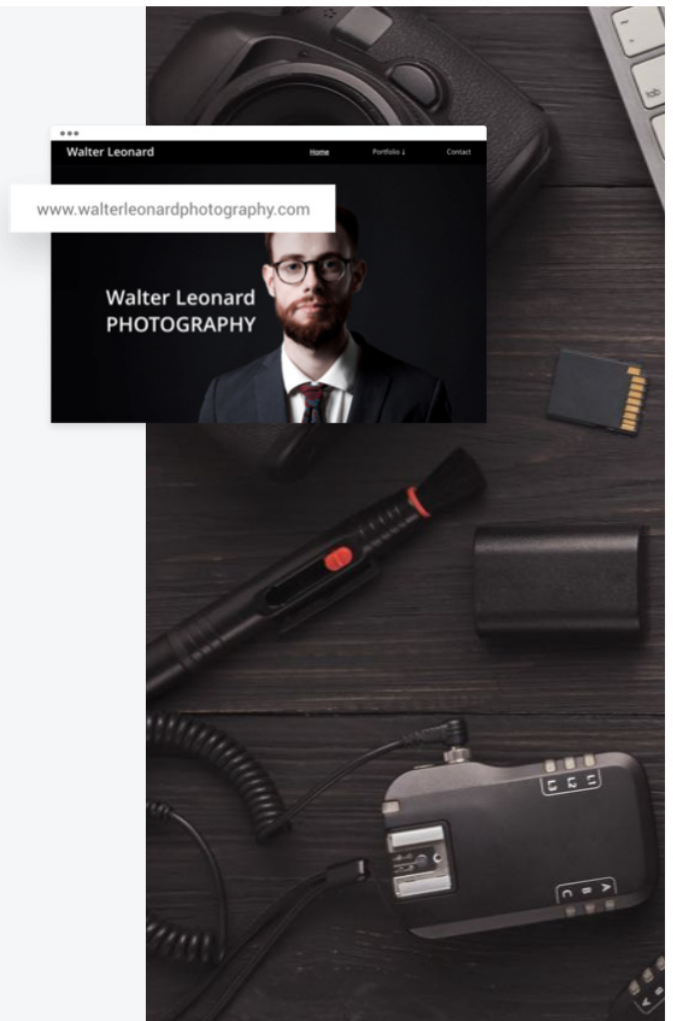

While .com is still the most recognizable extension, it's often difficult to get one that's short and memorable. Consider other top extensions like .net, .co, .guru, and .biz.

Think like a visitor

Consider the most important features of your brand—and the messages they convey—and look for phrases or keywords that might help express those features.

Avoid numbers

Verbally communicating a domain name that has a number can get really confusing. Should the number be written out as a word or is it numeric? Stick to your A-B-Cs.

Don't let it get away!

Secure your domain name.
