Let's keep our "chin up" - this is a great country and we can absolutely solve our most difficult problems and build a better future but we have to "pull" together, find common ground and start getting things done 😊

.@governorbullock is a terrific Governor, a deeply committed public servant and a great guy. Any debate process that excluded him - a sitting, successful, two term Democratic governor in a Trump state - from the stage is flawed by definition.

Remember, a computer algorithm has no faith and offers no love, fellowship or community. The social media platforms are built on computer algorithms. We need human interactions and community and friendships based on real relationships. It's available to everyone, just seek it.

I'm a big Springsteen fan (seen him 30 times in concert). Just listened to the Eric Church Springsteen song from a few years ago - I think he did a great job with it: a true country song but with an unmistakable Springsteen beat/melody to it. What's your view?

In some ways, each side of this argument are getting it wrong. What we need is free PreK-14 for everyone (years 13 & 14 being defined as community college/career training) and then we need to expand early childhood funding + cut student debt rates.

Good work by John Kerry. We need to attack the problem of global warming from every angle and do what America does best: innovate ourselves out of this problem with new ways of producing, storing, distributing, and conserving energy.

NATO is perhaps the most successful alliance ever, yet Trump has never liked it (as an FYI, Putin doesn't like it either). Trump's isolationism and disregard for our allies is the wrong answer to every foreign policy question.
