

The credit card was invented in 1950. The world is different now.

Flexa is a new payments network, built using cryptocurrencies, that brings buyers and sellers closer together in order to cut processing cost, eliminate fraud, and preserve your privacy.

This is what payments would look like if we built them in the digital era, from the ground up.