

Drug and Alcohol Treatment the Way it Should Be: Scottsdale Recovery Center

Jan 17, 2010 | Scottsdale Recovery Center

Compassion Received at SRC (Scottsdale Recovery Center)

The time for recovery is now. The place is SRC. The center is located in Scottsdale, AZ and is considered to be the best facility around for Relapse Prevention Substance Abuse Treatment. Recovery homes are located a short distance from the Center and the cost has been kept to a minimum in order to reach as many people with addiction problems as possible. The consideration of keeping the cost low shows how much the founder and his partner cares about those they strive to help.

Chris Cohn is one of the founders of the Center. He has a commitment not only to others but to himself to keep delivering a service that helps addicts stay sober. It should comfort the patients to know that he has been there. The journey to sobriety is a hard one, but with someone like Chris and the staff behind you the steps will get easier.

All clients are treated with the utmost compassion. The extent of quality care goes above and beyond all others. A beautiful home is provided for both women and men to rest and recover in. Clients are never treated with judgement or condemnation. They will only receive the consideration and compassion they deserve. Once evaluations have been done to determine the extent of the addiction doctors and therapist will work together to determine the type of treatment. Clients are strengthened with therapy and recovery time. Holistic, scientific, disease model and twelve-step methods are used to help clients regain control of their lives.

Clients work at a level they are comfortable with. One on one therapy and then group therapy are ways to share the stresses that cause the desires for substance abuse. The family is also invited in and compassionately involved with the recovery process.

The clients are encouraged to get healthy physically and mentally. Yoga, Meditation and Gym time are available. There are group outings every week to let clients feel the freedom and beauty of the outside world around them. 24- Hour Supervision takes place to ensure client safety and sobriety at all times and to keep the homes a "Sanctuary for Sobriety."

Classes and therapy are designed to help clients stay positive about sobriety. When the clients share their concerns with others struggling with the same problems they begin to see they are not alone.

Scottsdale Recovery Center is there for all it's clients. Their goal is to help as many people as possible become free from the chains of addiction. Restoring people to normal functioning lives is the ultimate goal at the Center.
