Description

The Wilson Blade BLX (WRT823100) badminton racket is an instant favorite for players looking for a very flexible racket with a solid power and feel thanks to BLX. The Wilson Matrix BLX (WRT823100) weighs only approximately 82 grams (4U), has high flex shaft, and has a balance of 29.8cm for a head heavy balance feel for aggressive and more attacking player. The new isometric square head shape provides more power and larger hitting area or sweetspot.

BLX is the new Wilson racket technology engineered with BASALT fibers combining proprietary frame, grommet and grip technologies for THE PERFECT FEEL. BLX allows the manufacturer, in this case Wilson Sporting Goods, to fine tune the composition, geometry, grommets and grip of each racket to maximize the feel for each player type. All is left is for the stringer or retailer, e.g. Badminton Alley, to customize the right string and tension to meet the customer type of play. The addition of BASALT fibers to the graphite matrix filters out the unwanted, extreme frequencies that are uncomfortable and distracting from the pure sensation of the racket to achieve a cleaner feel at shuttlecock contact.

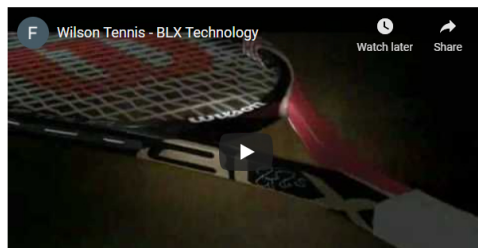

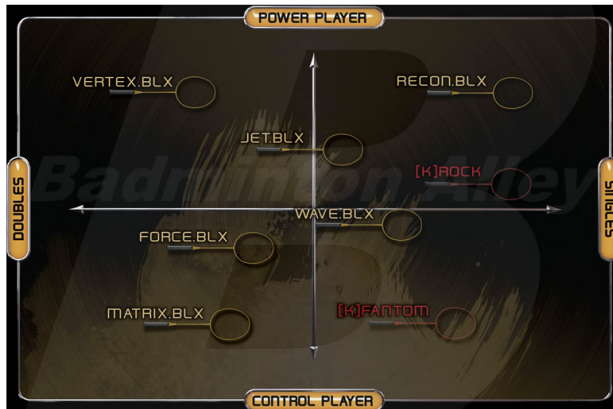

BLX 4 Frame Technologies

Linear: new and unique frame construction for better stability while the overall width and thickness can be reduced

Control Base: Special innovative hoop engineering design for maximum torsional stability

Dual Connect Top Cap: multi component construction providing IMMEDIATE racket feedback

Extended Power Shaft: new shaft engineering for more power and stability (previously known as Power Kick technology in the KFactor series)
