When to Replace Your Spa Cover

Spa covers are a smart investment to make because they protect your spa from damage and save money on electricity costs. They are made to last for years, but no matter how high quality your spa cover is, it will inevitably start showing signs that it's wearing out and needs to be replaced. Some of the tell-tale signs include sagging, cracks or rips, waterlogging, or a general foul odor. When you see any of these red flags

Caring For Your Hot Tub Cover

We take pride in crafting hot tub covers that are built to last. One way to ensure that your spa cover will last as long as possible is to perform proper at-home care. To clean your hot tub cover, simply wipe it down with water on both the interior and exterior sides. In addition, we highly recommend that you keep your hot tub cover clear of debris, snow, ice, and rain whenever possible. We also recommend that you keep your spa uncovered for at least an hour every week to allow it to breathe. Furthermore, be sure to remove your hot tub cover when you shock your spa for at least an hour as this is very important to ensuring the health of your cover. This action will prevent the chemical cloud and moisture of the hot tub from collecting inside the cover. With these quick and easy tips, you can make your investment last even longer.

How We Ensure the Quality of Your Hot Tub Cover

Our team of hot tub cover professionals is committed to providing you with the best product and experience possible. As such, our spa covers are meticulously checked before they are shipped. Each hot tub cover goes through a rigorous quality assurance process. This includes a brand and model dimensions review of the cover to ensure that the size will match your spa perfectly. In addition to that, we review the environment you live in to send you the most well equipped hot tub cover for your location. After ensuring that you will get the perfect spa cover, we'll ship it out to your home, free of charge!
