Question: How do you mount the pressure switch?

Answer: I used black electrical tape. Cut the the strip into 2. And taped the top and bottom of the pressure switch to the rail. Worked perfect. Plus u got electrical tape for emergency situations in case you ever need it

Question: Will this interfere with anything on a Mossberg 590a1 with the Tri-rail forend?

Answer: The only 590a1 I've seen had M-Lok forend. If that's the case then you'd need an M-Lok mount. I needed one for my light so I picked up a pkg of two offset mounts. They worked great.

Pro's:

- Very bright light to illuminate what you are targeting
- Much cheaper than fancy name-brand lighting options
- Pressure switch enables you to turn the light on quickly
- Rechargeable batteries that are interchangeable with some of my other lights

I bought this light to use on my Smith & Wesson M&P .22, which is an AR style .22 rifle. Upon attaching it to my rifle, the first thing I noticed was

I ordered 2 of these to place on my rifles. One of them the pressure switch was faulty but the light worked. Contacted the seller and sent me a new one right away that worked. Great customer service and great product. On my other rifle I have a surefire 6p and another I have a tlr-1s. So I took a chance and looked at the reviews and said why not and didn't want to spend another $100+ for a light system with a pressure switch especially for 2 rifles. I was surprised that it was just as bright as my surefire and tlr. its a little bit bigger than my surefire 6p and a little thicker but weight wise it was only about less than an ounce difference and the size wasn't that much different. I do like the fact that you can recharge the battery and that's a big plus for me instead of having to keep ordering new surefire batteries. its an 18650 battery that you can get at any vape shop but it comes with 2 of them and you don't have to unmount the light to charge it. the pressure switch is a little big but you have 2 modes on/off and a quick press to light up when you need it, but the size is fine and i have mine mounted at the top since I use a c grip when I shoot. I have not done a full test on its durability but it feels like a solid light. the mount it comes with is decent. it does the job. For the price and what you get I would definitely say its worth it. I would purchase this again for future builds.

Two advises for ladies here:

1. Believe me, no matter how old your man is - he is wants a bright flashlight!
2. do not make bets about brightness of your mans the flashlight !

My wife lost bet. Last picture you see is school across parking lot 105 meters (355 ft) away. She thought there is no way this little light can rich that far. She was wrong.

Material feels durable .

I have not mount it on the gun yet but this light is legit!

Nicely fit to keymod rail

Reviewed in the United States on July 1, 2020

Verified Purchase

Bright flashlight came with, not 1, but 2 rechargeable batteries. Awesome! it is always great to carry a backup battery. Little bit larger than normal AA type, it gets fully charged fairly quick using USB cable.

It fits perfectly to the rail of AR. The mount is made with solid material, secured with thumbscrew down. The extended remote button works just fine. One main on/off button, then intermittent flash buttons- well responded while attached to the rail. Overall great tactical flashlight for the price.

Fits my s&w m&p sports 2

Reviewed in the United States on July 19, 2020

Fits my sports 2 without any issues. Definitely very bright and well made, perfect for the late outdoors, will brighten your vicinity. The cable to turn on your flashlight works great and without any issues, i seen others with the same way to power it on not work but this one has no issues. Another great thing which makes it worth it is that its water resistant, not just the flashlight itself but even the cable power. The battery life also lasts a long time, and if you need another battery, they include 2!

BRIGHT light with good accessories

Reviewed in the United States on July 24, 2020

Verified Purchase

Wow, for a single LED, this thing is BRIGHT. I don't plan on using it on a rail mount, but it's nice to have the option. The switch is also a really cool feature and it feels well built. Definitely nice to have the separate end cap available if you don't want to use the switch. The modes (3 brightness levels and a couple different strobes) are all useful and I like that there are way too many options. Also fantastic that this comes with two batteries...the disadvantage of rechargeables is that you cant immediately be at full power when the batteries run down. With this though, it's easy to keep the spare around for instant swaps

High quality. Sturdy. Light. Metal body and mount. Extra battery

Reviewed in the United States on June 21, 2020

Verified Purchase

This is a very good quality light. It rugged, metal, and light. It includes an extra rechargeable battery. Keep In mind that these are not typical batteries. You will need a special charger to charge them outside of the flashlight. The battery inside the flashlight can be charged by the supplied USB cable. Tactile switch works great. The light has bright, dim mode and strobe mode. I will use it for my bicycle even though it is not meant for that. It will need a bike mount hardware. This light is meant for hunting but can also be used as a regular flashlight.
