

What We Offer

Aimed to help Individuals gain the tools they need to secure their economic future, the Next Level Beautiful Empowerment Summits take place in communities across the state. Our goal is to provide families with access to financial experts and local voices and leave feeling empowered in making informed decisions for themselves and their families.

These empowerment summits focus on wage negotiation, money management, retirement, and investment strategies for women of all ages, ethnicities, economic backgrounds, and levels of fiscal knowledge.

One of our key components in Next Level Beautiful is to build effective and long lasting partnership through mentoring. Mentoring is a relationship between two people with the goal of professional and personal development. The "mentor" is usually an experienced individual who shares knowledge, experience, and advice with a less experienced person, or "mentee."

A mentoring partnership may be between two people within the same company, same industry, or same networking organization. However the partners come together, the relationship should be based on mutual trust and respect, and it typically offers personal and professional advantages for both parties.

We believe through Mentoring and Other Professional Relationships:

Coaches, trainers, and consultants can all help you learn and grow professionally. Mentoring is a unique combination of all of these. Let's explore some of the similarities and differences between mentoring and these other professions.

- Next Level Beautiful Coaches help you to explore where you are in your career, where you want to go, and how you might get there. A coach will also support you in taking action to move toward your goal.
- Next Level Beautiful Trainers help you learn and develop specific skills and knowledge. They typically set the topic, the pace, the goals, and the learning method. While you will obviously choose courses that match your requirements as closely as possible, training courses, by their nature, start with their own agendas rather than with your situation. Mentoring, however, can be tailored to your needs. While training is often best suited for gaining knowledge and skills, mentoring can also help you develop personal qualities and competencies.
- Next Level Beautiful Career Consultants or Career Counsellors mostly work with people in transition between jobs, rather than helping you develop your skills when in a particular role. And, again, your relationship will often be a commercial one.

What are the Benefits to the Mentor?

Becoming a mentor can enrich your life on a personal and professional level by helping you do the following:

- Build your leadership skills - It helps you develop your ability to motivate and encourage others. This can help you become a better manager, employee, and team member.
- Improve your communication skills - Because your mentee may come from a different background or environment, the two of you may not "speak the same language." This may force you to find a way to communicate more effectively as you navigate your way through the mentoring relationship.
- Learn new perspectives - By working with someone less experienced and from a different background, you can gain a fresh perspective on things and learn a new way of thinking - which can help in your work life as well as your personal life.
- Advance your career - Refining your leadership skills can strengthen your on-the-job performance, perhaps helping you get that promotion to higher management - or into management in the first place. Showing that you've helped others learn and grow is becoming more and more essential to advancement in today's business world.
- Gain personal satisfaction - It can be very personally fulfilling to know that you've directly contributed to someone's growth and development. Seeing your mentee succeed as result of your input is a reward in itself.
