Honestly I have no idea how much this deters thefts or not. We have an older car though so we use it. Works as it should. Easy to use. In my head it helps as a deterrent, whether that is the case or not I don't know, but it leaves me feeling a little bit better when leaving my car. They last forever and can be used on any car, so I still use it on my newer car too even though it would be a little harder to steal. Again its that little extra piece of mind. I'm guessing if someone really wanted to take the car and cut the club off they could with some crazy tool out there, but it lets me sleep a little better.

I have an older model car that is often the target of thieves so I bought this club. I lost my indoor parking at my workplace so I now park on the street and wanted to have some theft protection. It's super easy to use. You can put it on without using the key, then taking it off you unlock it and pop it off.

This is a capable high profile anti theft device. I put it in my classic/antique pickup truck for added security along with wing window locks. It's a great tool as long as you don't expect it to work miracles. Mine functions flawlessly unlike some of the reviews I have read. I recommend using it in conjunction with other anti theft devices for older vehicles. I wouldn't hesitate to buy another one in the future.

I park 2 cars on the street i a major city. This gives me the piece of mind to know that if a car gets stolen, it will most likely be someones else's.) Goes on and off easily with the key and secures well to my steering wheel. Only downside to using the club is that you have to remind yourself of the screwed up community you live in where you have to put on extra security measures to make sure someone doesn't steal your car.

No better product for its price and simplicity of use. Just a note for potential buyers, it will automatically lock without the key when extended, a brilliant convenience when you are locking up. Upon unlocking, you must turn the key a certain way to remove it. But that extra step puts the Club in the automatic lock readiness when you extend it. If there is a downside, it'll be its weigh which probably a characteristic of its high quality and purposeful protection feature.

I will use this to Club the next person who tries to steal my car (we just had a Honda Civic stolen). I hope this device helps slow down/deter the next amateur until I can come out and taze them repeatedly as I await the arrival of the cops!
