National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America

In the summer of 2013, Carnegie Hall's Weill Music Institute brings together 120 of the brightest young orchestral players from across the country to form the only National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America. Following a comprehensive audition process and a two-week training residency with leading professional orchestra musicians at Purchase College, State University of New York, these remarkable teenagers embark on an international tour to some of the great music capitals of the world. On their journey, the members of NYO-USA will shine a light on the extraordinary talent of young American instrumentalists and serve as dynamic musical ambassadors for the US.

For NYO-USA's inaugural season, famed maestro Valery Gergiev leads the orchestra to Washington, DC, Moscow, St. Petersburg, and London.

Conductor Valery Gergiev offers his thoughts to young musicians on the opportunity to be part of the new NYO-USA.

Important funding for the launch of the National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America has been provided by Joan and Sanford I. Weill and The Weill Family Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Peter Jay Sharp Foundation and Ann Ziff.

Hogwarts for Musicians
 Barely one year old, the National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America, a program of Carnegie Hall's Weill Music Institute, has already established itself as a mecca for the country's most talented young instrumentalists. In the words of Jared Murray—a cellist from Lanesville, Indiana, who played with the orchestra in its inaugural season last summer—NYO-USA is "basically Hogwarts for musicians."

Each summer, Carnegie Hall's Weill Music Institute brings together the brightest young players from across the country to form the National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America. Following a two-week training residency with leading professional orchestra musicians, these remarkable teenagers not only have the opportunity to play on the famed stage of Carnegie Hall but then embark on a tour to some of the great music capitals of the world, while serving as dynamic musical ambassadors.

In 2016, the orchestra performs music of Mozart and Bruckner at Carnegie Hall with conductor Christoph Eschenbach and pianist Emanuel Ax. The musicians then embark on a European tour that takes them to Amsterdam, Montpellier, Copenhagen, and Prague, led by conductor Valery Gergiev and with pianist Denis Matsuev, performing music by Debussy, Rachmaninoff, and Prokofiev.

In 2017, the orchestra heads to South America with Marin Alsop on the podium.
