Uniquely, the induction annealer has adjustable power and time settings built into the pre-programs. This allows small and very precise increments in annealed neck hardness. When setting the correct program for new brass, we start low and work up until we achieve the target hardness. We then publish these results in the settings page on our website for the benefit of all AMP users. This is an on going effort made possible by the hundreds of samples we have received for testing. This is a free service we encourage customers to use as it guarantees an accurate result. The MARK II Annealer also comes complete with the AZTEC mode which allows you to analyse your own brass and generate the correct setting yourself rather than sending it to us.
