Accurate and easy to use, our ovulation tests (also called LH tests) are designed to detect the rise in hormones that happen one or two days before ovulation is due. Ovulation tests are a great way to get better precision when finding your fertile window. Ovulation tests work by detecting the presence of luteinizing hormone (LH) in urine. An increase of LH indicates that ovulation is about to happen.

However, it does not confirm that ovulation has or will happen.

- To use our ovulation tests, collect a urine sample in a clean container. Dip the ovulation test strip into the cup and submerge for 10 seconds. Leave the test strip on a flat surface. The result will be visible after a few minutes. If you're using Natural Cycles, you will get prompted on the best days to take an ovulation test.
- Natural Cycles users can get even more from ovulation tests, as these can give the app's algorithm a boost in finding your fertile window. This means more green (non-fertile) days for those using Natural Cycles as birth control, while those planning a pregnancy get an even clearer idea of their most fertile days.
- Our ovulation tests are safe to use and are FDA Cleared in the US

Product Description

When and how to measure LH

In the Natural Cycles app, we'll tell you when it's time to test LH. You can see if you should take a test in the today view in your predictions.

The test measures LH levels in your urine. Read the instructions on the packet carefully before taking a test.

How to read the results

Both lines must be equally strong to confirm a positive LH test. If you see a positive test but no ovulation is confirmed in the Natural Cycles app, it means the algorithm can't confirm ovulation from the temperature data. If this happens, keep measuring!

Why testing LH is beneficial

Testing for LH is optional in the Natural Cycles app. It helps the algorithm narrow down the fertile window and find ovulation. However, prevent users get roughly 5% more non-fertile days and plan users get more precision around ovulation with positive LH tests.

I bought these to use along with the Natural Cycles app. They are a great addition and help the app's algorithm target my ovulation so I can avoid pregnancy. Hands down, this is the best birth-control method I've ever used!
